NATION WEEPS FOR ITS KING

GUNS BOOM SALUTE TO DEAD RULER

YUGO-SLAVS' TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO ALEXANDER

PEASANTS' OFFERING

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraphic Messenger Ordinance, 1894. Received, Oct. 15, 9:29 a.m.)

Belgrade, Oct. 14.
As the Yugo-Slavian destroyer, Dubrovnik, with its sad burden, approached the port of Split at 5 o'clock this morning, the united batteries of the Yugo-Slavia fleet fired salvo after salvo in a royal salute to the late King Alexander.

The bells of all the churches along the coast tolled continuously and masses of people stood silent and with bowed heads, awaiting the arrival of their ruler's remains.

The destroyer, followed by a French flotilla, moved slowly into port and the ships of the British Mediterranean Fleet thundered a last salute.

TOUCHING DEMONSTRATION.

A special boat from Hvar brought Father Koroshetz, leader of the Slovenian People's Party and former Prime Minister, who for two years was interned on an island near Hvar by order of the late King.

The veteran politician stood weeping silently beside the coffin, and then turning to the mourning masses, said:

"At this moment when all Yugo-Slavia is weeping over the coffin of a great King, the people must forgive the past. We must work and live for Yugo-Slavia."

After the funeral train had left for Belgrade, carrying Prince Arseno, uncle of King Alexander, members of the Government, and the French Minister of Marine, the vast crowd remained for many minutes motionless and silent.

Then slowly it drifted and dissolved away.—Reuter Special.

PEASANTS SCATTER FLOWERS.

Zagreb, Oct. 14.
The strains of the National Anthem announced the arrival of the funeral train at Zagreb station to-day, bearing the late King of Yugo-Slavia on a last journey through his native land.

The arrival of King Alexander's bier evoked an impressive demonstration of loyalty and affection from the whole people. Waiting peasants scattered masses of flowers along the railway line.

SAD PASSING

Serbs, Bosnians, Mohammedans, Catholics and Croats, all the varied populace, without distinction, flocked bare-headed to the railway line to see the passing of the royal train and pay their last tribute.

The coffin was placed in a catafalque in the station's royal reception room where crowds filed past for hours.

The funeral will take place on Thursday.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

Belgrade, Oct. 14.

It is officially announced that King Alexander's assassin has been identified as a Bulgarian named Vlado Georgiev, who was formerly chauffeur to the Macedonian terrorist chief, Ivan Michailov.—United Press.

Florida Offering Tax Advantages

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraphic Messenger Ordinance, 1894. Received, October 15, 1934.)

Miami, Oct. 14.
The City Commission is at present investigating whether it can constitutionally grant a taxation exemption for a period of years in order to lure California's motion picture industry into the state of Florida.

If Mr. Upton Sinclair is elected to the Governor's office in California he will endeavour to tax heavily the picture industry, and taking advantage of the weakness of the companies, Florida is now holding out a tempting bait. The saving, from exemption in state taxation would soon pay the cost of the industry's removal, it is believed.—United Press.

STRANGE STREET ACCIDENT

Shanghai, Oct. 15.
Mr. A. M. McDougall, formerly of Glasgow, was killed in an unusual traffic accident in Bubbling Well Road to-day.

While driving his motor-cycle along the crowded street he was forced to swerve suddenly in an attempt to avoid a Chinese, who ran across in front of him.

The machine struck the Chinese glancing blow, and skidding, threw Mr. McDougall heavily.

The Chinese was only slightly injured, but when the motor-cycle was brought to hospital it was found that his skull was fractured. He died four hours later.

Mr. McDougall had only been three months in Shanghai.—Reuter.

The ship, H.M.S. Folkstone, is due here from Shanghai to-morrow and the mine-laying cruiser, H.M.S. Adventure, is also due on the same day from Nimrod Sound.

Trend Of Market In Hongkong Depends On Local Government

Under the watchful eyes of soldiers, secret service men and police, an initial instalment of a $2,250,000,000 shipment of gold is seen leaving San Francisco for the Denver mint. A searchlight unit from the fire department brightened the scene as a portion of the 1,500 tons was loaded into special cars.

U.S. INCENSED BY GERMANY

UNFAIR FISCAL POLICY

DISCRIMINATION IN LOAN PAYMENT

TRADE TREATY ABROGATION

Washington, Oct. 14.

There is a distinct strain upon American-German commercial and fiscal relations, produced by Germany's week-end announcements terminating the "most favoured nation" trade treaty with the United States and declaring that she would only pay 75 per cent. of the interest due to American bondholders of the Dawes issue.

Payment is due to be made to-morrow.

While there is no official comment on the subject, the American Government considers the reduction of the interest payment on the Dawes Loan is a definite discrimination against the United States.

The bondholders of seven other countries are to be paid in full, it is pointed out.

SHAKES POLICY.

The denunciation of the trade treaty does not accord with Secretary of State Mr. Cordell Hull's policy, aiming at extension of "most favoured nation" treatment and the breaking down of international trade barriers.

The State Department's reception of suggestions by the German Ambassador, Herr Luther, for negotiations to replace the present trade treaty, was very cool.—Reuter.

London, Oct. 14.
Mr. Justice Acton has resigned the office of Judge of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, which he has held since 1920.

The Hon. Sir Edward Acton, who was born in 1865, was called to the Bar in 1891, and practised in the Northern Circuit. He later became Lecturer in Law at the University of Manchester and was Judge of County Court at Nottingham from 1918 to 1920. He is a Bencher of the Inner Temple.—Reuter Special.

NANKING PROTECTS HER CURRENCY

NO INTENTION TO ALTER DOLLAR'S CONTENT

U.S. CONTINUING PURCHASES

SILVER EXPECTED TO ADVANCE IN LONDON

NANKING, OCT. 14.

THE CHINESE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT HAS ISSUED AN ORDER REGARDING THE IMPOSITION OF A NEW DUTY ON SILVER EXPORTS.

"IN VIEW OF THE UNDUE RISE IN THE PRICE OF SILVER IN RELATION TO THE LEVEL OF GENERAL COMMODITY PRICES. THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT, IN ORDER TO SAFEGUARD CHINESE ECONOMIC INTERESTS AND TO PROTECT CHINA'S CURRENCY, HAS FIXED A CUSTOMS DUTY ON THE EXPORT OF SILVER, EFFECTIVE AS FROM OCTOBER 15. DETAILS ARE AS FOLLOWS:—

On silver dollars and mint silver bars 10 per cent. duty, less 2 1/4 per cent. minting charges already paid, that is 7 3/4 per cent. net.

On all other forms of silver 10 per cent. duty, in lieu of the above 2 1/4 per cent. not paid.

In addition, an equalisation charge will be imposed on the export of silver equal to the deficiency, if any, existing between the theoretical parity with London silver and a rate of exchange officially fixed by the Central Bank of China, after making due allowance for the payment of the export duty."

DAILY RATE.

Simultaneously with the promulgation of the National Government's order regarding the imposition of a new export duty on silver, the Central Bank of China has made the following announcement:—

"Notice is hereby given that the General Bank of China will notify the customs authorities at 11:30 a.m. daily on all business days, beginning as from October 15, of an official rate for determining the deficiency between the theoretical parity of London silver and the exchange rate on London in Shanghai, in accordance with the terms of the Chinese National Government's order fixing the export duty on silver and imposing an equalisation charge on the export of silver."

PROTECTION MEASURE.

Commenting on the National Government order regarding the new duties on silver exports, Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister of the Government, stated that there had been no reason to expect "that the forces which had been recently stimulating the price of silver abroad would soon cease to operate, therefore the Chinese Government, out of regard for the economic welfare of the people living in China, has taken this measure as a necessary step to safeguard China's currency from the potentially dangerous drain on the country's monetary reserves and in order to place a check upon the operation of harsh deflationary forces, which had been reflected in falling commodity prices.

Dr. Kung said that the measure had been decided upon after most careful consideration of various proposals for meeting with the emergency and after full consultation with leaders of business and finance.

The Chinese Government considered that it should not impose an embargo on the export of silver and preferred the imposition of a flexible export duty that would restrain exports of silver within the limits actually required by balance payments.

The Finance Minister stated in conclusion that he would not even consider the reduction of the silver content of the Chinese dollar, which proposal, he stated, was never mentioned at the conferences.—Reuter.

U.S. POLICIES UNCHANGED

SILVER BUYING "OUR OWN AFFAIR"

DOLLAR PROSPECTS

Washington, Oct. 14.

President Roosevelt declares that it is the Government's intention to raise commodity prices further and adjust the relationship between the difference of groups and prices. Eventual but not immediate devaluation is expected as Government policies are inflationary. A slow price rise in commodities is expected.

The U. S. Dollar in terms of foreign exchange is expected to stabilize at around four dollars and eighty-six cents to the pound sterling. Silver imports are being used to stabilize exchange. It is expected that in reply to their survey now the Chinese Government will be told that "silver buying is our own domestic affair."

Preponderous official opinion is that any widespread conflict as a

LOCAL POLICY AWAITED

H.K. COMPELLED TO ACT

The Nanking decision caused much excitement in Hongkong and Shanghai exchange markets this morning, though it was not totally unexpected.

The official rate of the Hongkong dollar, on opening, was 1s. 7 7/8d., the same as Saturday, with gold dollars at 40%. All rates in the local market are nominal, banks declining to do business except at the official rates.

The future trend of the market in Hongkong depends on the policy of the local Government, and until that is disclosed, nominal rates will prevail.

The expectation is that the Hongkong Government will be compelled to take action of some kind, in order to protect its currency.

It is believed that the effect of China's new order in London and New York will be to raise silver prices still further.

In Shanghai, the market opened at 1s. 6 7/8d., sterling and 36 5/8 gold dollars. Gold bars, which closed on Saturday at 908, opened at 927 this morning and later went as high as 931, but later reacted again to 927. The market, as in Hongkong, is purely nominal.

GOVERNMENT WATCHING SITUATION

The Hon. Colonial Treasurer (Mr. Edwin Taylor), when asked by the Telegraph this morning whether the Government intended to take any action to protect the Colony's currency, stated that he could communicate nothing to the Press on the subject.

Asked if the Government were considering the question of action, Mr. Taylor replied:—"You can state that the Government is watching the situation."

result of the Yugo-Slavian affair will be avoided.

Less than seasonal general business improvement is expected during October with a slightly higher volume in November and December. Farmer business will be bigger during the next few months, partly for seasonal reasons and partly because of the unusually generous Government disbursement. Business sentiment is better.—Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

STRONG CASE FOR SILVER CIVILISATION AT STAKE

NEEDED AS LEGAL TENDER

An Illustrated pamphlet entitled "Silver Money: The Case for its Restoration," contains what is described as a "preamble of some of the world's most authoritative opinion" on this aspect of the monetary question.

There is a foreword by Lord Desborough, K.C., G.C.V.O.; Lord Greenway, Lord Hunsdon, Sir Henri Deterding, K.B.E., and Sir Montagu de P. Webb, C.I.E., C.B.E., in which it is stated:—

"The principal argument in favour of gold is that the great prosperity of this country in the middle of last century was achieved under the single gold standard. But it is not realised that the world, and this country of course with it, was working under the Bimetallic system, which maintained a parity between the two metals during the whole of that period.

"Since 1873, after the closing of the French and American mints to silver, this country seems to have lost no opportunity of further depreciating that metal. It closed the mints in India to silver, it debased our silver token coinage, and still presses the surplus stock of rupees on the market; with the result that silver-using countries are hindered from buying our goods and the growth of local manufactures in those countries is greatly stimulated.

EAST VS. WEST.

"It would seem that some of the leaders of business, banking, and mercantile opinion in Great Britain have now realised that the great economic struggle of the immediate future is going to be East versus West; and that the East, with its many hundreds of millions of alert, industrious and willing workers, armed with cheap but effective silver money tools, are formidable competitors whom it will be extremely difficult to meet successfully unless Great Britain and the West also employ, in addition to their present monetary weapon, the same cheap monetary tools, and restore silver to the position that it has occupied throughout the ages."

Summarising the opinions given in the pamphlet, the case for the restoration of silver as full legal tender money, and as one of the backings of the paper currencies of Europe and America, is stated to rest on the following facts:—

"World conditions have greatly changed since the Great War; and, to-day, are wholly different from those of last century.

"Silver is now of greater importance than gold; for whereas gold as currency has virtually disappeared (being unstable), silver money is a necessity in the East, in the Tropics, and in certain other parts of the world. Silver money is to-day legal tender without limit in China, with a population, say, 450,000,000; in India, population, 350,000,000; in the U.S.A., population, 125,000,000, not to mention Mexico and other countries.

GREATER STABILITY.

"The legalising of silver and gold together as world-money would raise world prices, and eventually make a more stable standard of value, i.e., greater stability of prices, than gold alone would or could.

"The raising of the gold price of silver would greatly increase the purchasing power of India and all silver-using countries.

"Western anti-silver legislation, whilst depressing the gold price of silver, has not lessened pro tanto its value, i.e., its purchasing power.

"In other words, wages and fixed charges in the East (paid in silver) have little varied in re-

TO MEND CHINA

BROKEN china can be quite successfully mended at home. Vases, ornamental plates, figures, etc., can be repaired with an almost invisible mending as long, of course, as the pieces have been carefully retained. Strong liquid glue for this purpose can now be bought in tubes for a few pence. The first thing to make sure of is that the edges to be joined together are thoroughly clean. They should be washed in hot water, and if any previous attempt at mending has been unsuccessfully made, they should be scrubbed with a nail brush dipped in strong soda water.

When the edges are dry handle them as little as possible. Apply the liquid glue to the edges, seeing that all parts of the china are evenly covered but being careful not to use too much. Then the glue should be left for several minutes until it is apparently almost dry. Then the edges should be firmly pressed together and held so for a few minutes. When it is apparent that the edges are binding together, rest the article down in such a way that there is no strain on the join. Leave it for twenty-four hours and then remove, with a knife blade if necessary, any surplus of glue that may have been squeezed out of the join.

cent years; which means (a) Greater competing power by the East in selling its raw products.

(b) Reduced ability on the part of the East to buy Western manufactures as largely as before.

(c) A strong stimulus to the East to build up its own manufacturing industries with cheap labour, cheap money, and the latest modern machinery.

(d) Severe competition by the East in all the markets of the world.

"The continued neglect to incorporate silver in the world's supply of legal tender money may jeopardise and possibly wreck Western civilisation."

The pamphlet, to which a number of striking illustrations are contributed by Lady Rolleston, will be read with interest by students of monetary problems.

CATHEDRALS ON DOLE

FINANCIAL HELP ESSENTIAL

BRITAIN RESPONDS TO APPEAL

London, Sept. 23.

Seven of Great Britain's historic cathedrals are "on the dole," according to the latest report of the Cathedral Commissioners for England.

These world-famed buildings, visited annually by thousands from abroad, were vying on bankruptcy when the Church Assembly recently voted £18,000 a year for ten years to steer them off the financial rocks. It is estimated that the minimum income on which a cathedral can get along is £9,000 a year. Several were living on an average income of little more than £6,000.

The seven cathedrals hardest hit by reduced incomes during the last year or two are Carlisle, Chichester, Lichfield, Peterborough, Ripon, Salisbury and Wells. None of these buildings is less than 600 years old.

Chichester's income during the last few years has averaged less than £6,000, much below the sum reckoned by the Cathedral Commissioners as a minimum "living wage" for a cathedral. Peterborough's income of less than £5,000 will probably suffer further reduction this year. During the last 30 years the cathedral authorities at Peterborough have only been able to keep the fabric from collapsing by raising £100,000 in public subscriptions.

The precarious financial condition of many British cathedrals is attributed in the main to agricultural depression in this country. Most cathedrals depend to a large extent for their income on revenue derived from the lands they own. The withholding of tithes which the cathedrals cannot collect has also had a serious effect on their finances.

The granting of the £18,000 a year "dole" by the Church Assembly has eased the financial worries of the cathedrals, though several will still have an income below the £9,000 danger line.—United Press.

SOVIET GANGSTERS SHOT TO DEATH

QUICK JUSTICE FOR DESPERADOES

Leningrad, Oct. 10.

A bandit gang whose terrorist activities mildly rivalled those of the late John Dillinger in America has just been found guilty by a Soviet court.

The gang of three men, hardened criminals who had just been released from a labour camp, recruited a fourth member, an 18-year-old boy, and resumed their old trade.

First they robbed a State bread store, escaping with 8,000 roubles. This was soon spent on drink and women. Then the bandits looked around for new treasure.

They decided to hold up a wine store. After waiting outside until the cashier started to the bank, the gang knocked her down and tried to escape with her brief-case, which contained 5,000 roubles. But the cashier's cries brought a policeman running to the scene. Both he and the girl were wounded, but a crowd closed in around the fighters and held the bandits.

Soviet justice was fast and firm. The three adult leaders of the gang were sentenced to be shot. The youth was given three years in prison.—United Press.

TRADE
ADVANCEANGLO-SOVIET
BUSINESSFIFTY PER CENT
INCREASEBALANCE
SOUGHT

London, Oct. 10. A marked increase in Anglo-Russian trade has accompanied the improvement of political relations between those countries in 1934.

The total turn-over of commerce between Britain and the Soviets in the first six months of this year has exceeded that of 1933 by approximately 50 per cent. True, this rise has been due partly to the adverse factor of the April-July, 1933, trade embargo which naturally dealt a severe blow to traffic between the two countries last year; the embargo followed the arrest of British engineers in Moscow. But even leaving the abnormal embargo situation out of account, the development of Anglo-Soviet commerce has recently disclosed signs of healthy growth.

The trend is illustrated by the following figures for the first six months of the three respective years:

	British Imports	British Exports	Soviet Imports
1932	£ 7,729,148	£ 762,850	£ 4,721,248
1933	£ 5,092,027	£ 474,507	£ 2,182,217
1934	£ 7,708,225	£ 1,320,160	£ 1,698,729

Mounting Soviet purchases on the British market appear to be the outstanding fact emerging from these figures. With a state monopoly of foreign trade prevailing in Russia, there seems to be no doubt that the Soviet government has deliberately turned away from the United States and Germany and looked more and more to Britain as the source of supply for the required minimum of imported goods.

POLITICAL AMOSITY.

Political animosity between Germany and the Soviet Union makes annum as a flat interest charge, making the total burden between 10 and 12 per cent. Some British banks, however, have been advancing short-term, six to ten months' credits to Russian enterprises on a global four to five per cent. basis. Average periods of credit range from 12 to 18 months.

But Soviet credit policy has undergone a radical change. During the earliest era of Soviet industrialisation, the Russians were in such urgent need of production machinery that they eagerly sought foreign credits on terms which, under normal conditions, would generally be regarded as even usurious. Nowadays, Moscow evinces no such avidity for credits. Indeed, about a third of Soviet purchases in Britain are settled on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

SHORT TERM CREDITS.

Prices have eclipsed credit facilities as the major consideration in the placing of Soviet orders abroad. Russia has lost interest in short-term credits and has nearly wiped out her outstanding short-term obligations in foreign countries. Nor are the Bolsheviks ready to pay more than the prevailing international interest rate for credits. Reasonable price offers have become the determining factors in the promotion of trade with the Soviet Union.

Anglo-Russian trade received a more stable foundation with the signature of the trade agreement between those countries on February 16, 1934. Formerly the balance of trade between them had ranged between three-to-one and four-to-one in Russia's favour. The February accord provided that the balance of payments shall be approximately equalised within four years, bearing the ratio 1 to 1.7 in the Soviets' favour on January 1, 1935 and, as from 1938 onwards, maintain a ratio of about 1 to 1.1.

Increase of Soviet purchases in Britain this year indicates that the stipulated balance will be attained by January 1.—United Press.

it unnecessary to seek farther afield for an explanation of the ruthless reduction of Russian purchases on the German market. Formerly the chief beneficiary of Soviet orders placed abroad, Germany now lags far behind Britain. But the United States, too, has been among the losers in the international scramble for Soviet business. Smooth extension of government credits to Russia was blocked by enactment of the Johnson Law and failure hitherto to settle the Soviet-United States best problem has left Russian-American trade stagnant. Britain has consequently emerged from this muddle as the smiling third party.

As a result, cargo steamers have been leaving British shores, laden with tool machinery, iron and steel, equipment for the Moscow subway, sheet iron and special steel amalgams, as well as with re-exported lead, tin, copper, rubber and tea—all bound for Russia. A British manufacturer or merchant, selling to the Soviets on a credit basis, enjoyed a 75 per cent. guarantee of such credits, granted by the British government.

IMPROVED CREDITS.

But credit conditions for Russia have of late improved here. Up to this year, the average insurance rate for dealings with the Soviets was 10 per cent.; now it has dropped to about 6.66 per cent. Beyond this, the Russians are paying approximately 8 per cent. per

REJECTEDCOMPROMISE PLAN
SUGGESTED

Germany's offer to pay £276,000 owing to Lancashire yarn spinners, by 12 monthly instalments was rejected by spinners at a meeting in Manchester.

As an inducement to settle, Germany offered that if the Empire would take a bigger share of hosiery and gloves, payment of the old debts would be speeded up.

Germany also asked for a resumption of yarn supplies, the new business to be done at six months' credit instead of the usual 30 days' credit.

The meeting in Manchester decided to set up a special committee to deal with the matter and co-operation of the coal and wool yarn exporters will be sought.

Two deputations have been to Germany, and on the last visit the offer was made with the backing of Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichsbank.

THE ENIGMA
OF DOORNSQUIRES' RIVALRY
IN HOLLAND
EX-KAISER'S
AMBITION

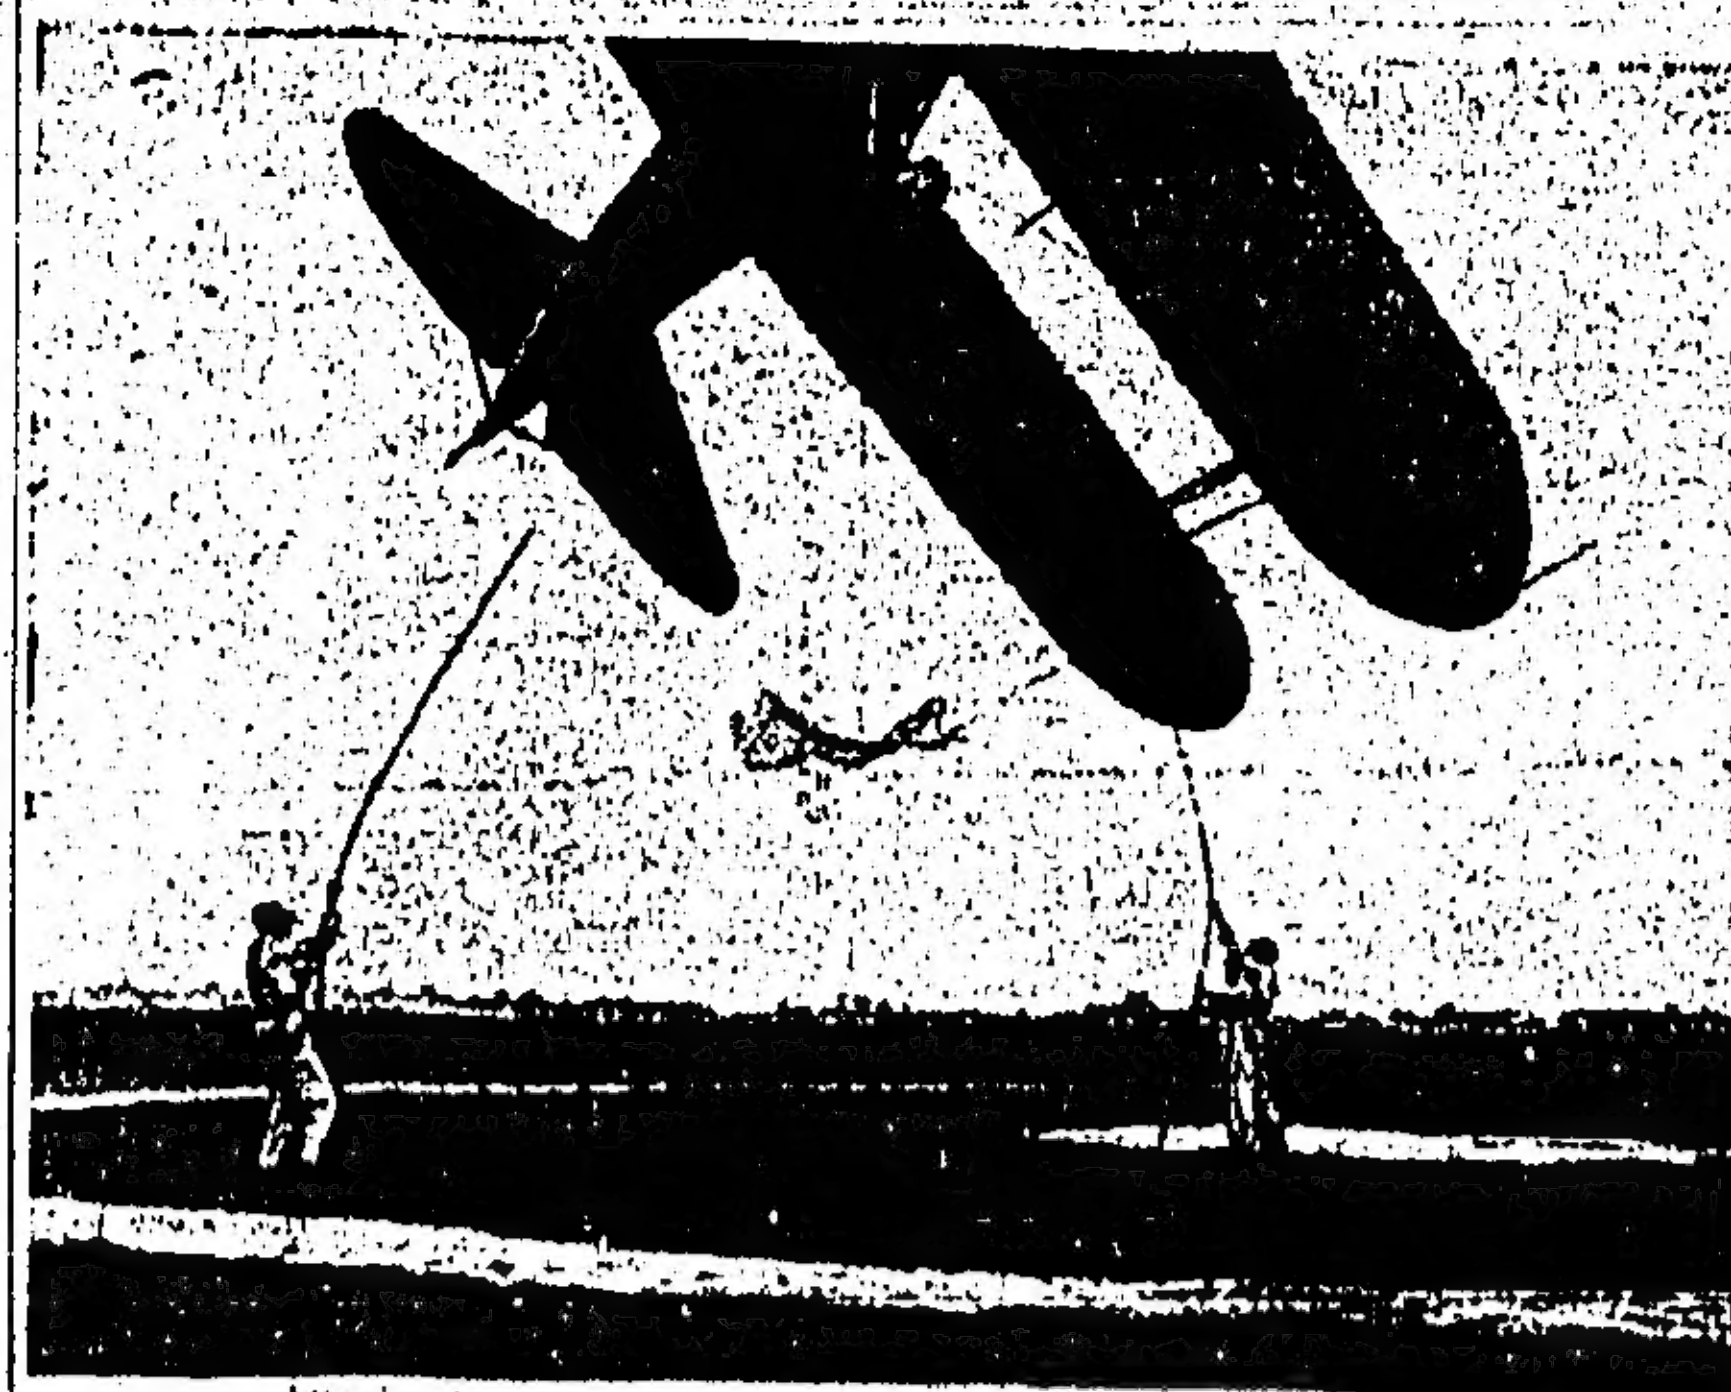

Doorn, Oct. 8.

While Wilhelm von Hohenzollern certainly never forgets that he is a world figure, the most curious thing about him is his ambition to be regarded as The Squire of Doorn.

But this is denied him. In Doorn there are at least a dozen Dutch noblemen rooted in the soil and assuming unquestioned priority. All along the highway from the village of Driebergen clear to Amerongen their estates extend; here they have been living—some of them in the oldest castles of feudal Holland for generations. To them Wilhelm is still the foreigner, with no claim to assume any of the duties of the squirearchy.

However, the rich foreigner at "Huis Doorn" refuses to take this lying down. When Winter comes, he and Hermine set up their own private relief fund for the village poor; on Boxing Day the poor go to his castle and receive their parcels of food and clothing from the hands of Wilhelm and his wife. He invites the village choir to give an evening concert on his estate; he takes a practical as well as a financial interest in everything that concerns the village.

Just how rich he still is seems to be a matter of dispute. Baron von Sell, his public relations counsel and business representative, told the United Press in January that by the settlement between the State and the Crown in 1926, "the royal family had to renounce about five sixths of its private fortune" and that this fortune, the ex-Kaiser lives like a wealthy aristocrat rather than like a wealthy bourgeois. His household numbers about 60, all of whom—except the guards at the gates—gather for daily worship in the chapel at 8.45 a.m.

Actually the establishment is a miniature Potsdam. Within the gates he never forgets or permits others to forget, that he is Kaiser Wilhelm II of Hohenzollern. He has his Court Marshal, his aides, his staff and his Court Physician. Everybody has to stand to attention, to click heels when doing so, to refrain from speaking except when spoken to, and to obey meticulously all the thousand and one rules and ceremonies followed at Potsdam.

Meals—Even though he eats only the simplest fare and that sparingly—are always served in the most temporaneous, with a natural pre-occupation with the startling events in Germany.

KNOWS TO A PENNY.

His mornings he devotes to the management of his property. He is said to know to a penny what his income is. He has had many a quarrel with the Dutch tax authorities over his income. When he first resided at "Huis Doorn" he refused to pay Dutch income tax on the grounds that he was a political refugee. Finally he had to pay, under protest.

Thus he lives a dual life at Doorn. That of the country aristocrat, moving hatless through his grounds, studying his roses, thinning out his trees; and that of an international figure, head of an ancient House which the world has never completely forgotten and which, in the whirlwind of Time, residue "has to be shared among 17 households, comprising 40 members of the Royal Family."

"Furthermore," continued the Baron, "there remain other obligations, such as pensions, which have to be paid, although the bulk of the estate consists of landed property which has yielded no income for years though requiring to be maintained in a suitable manner by a large staff of officials, workmen and their families."

CARICATURE OF WEALTH.

Berlin estimates that the ex-Kaiser's private fortune amounts to 700,000,000 marks, were dismissed by the Baron, impatiently, as "grotesque political caricatures."

But whatever the size of his formal atmosphere; he invariably dresses for dinner and so does Hermine. On special occasions he dons one of his old uniforms—the brilliant uniform of the All-Highest Warlord. And although he is invariably the amiable host, we be-tide the envious or ignorant guest who neglects the prescribed guest ceremony. He is never invited again.

But this "make believe" does not mean that the ex-Kaiser lives in the past or suffers "delusions of grandeur." His only concern with the past is to defend, in one book after another, his reputation and that of the German people from the "war guilt" charge. Other than that, his interests are intensely con-might once more figure in dramatic events.

He must have his own strong and even obstinate opinions about Hindenburg and Hitler, but all that he has permitted the outside world to know is that he "rejoices in the unity of the German people." He must know that many would like to see him seated once more on his old throne in Potsdam but no visitor had ever drawn him out on this subject. That his children and grandchildren stand in the streets and salute the Austrian-born ex-housepainter Hitler—not a word of comment on this has ever issued from his mouth or pen.

He remains the enigma of Doorn.—United Press.

NEVER!

PALE, colorless lips may age your face—cause people to think you older than you are. But there is a way to make yourself look more youthful. Simply emphasize the natural color in your lips.

What you need is the lipstick that intensifies the natural rose of your lips without risking that painted look. This lipstick is called Tangee. It isn't paint.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE

In the stick, Tangee looks orange. On your lips, it's rose. Not plain rose. Not jarring red but your natural color. Tangee changes color to the one shade of blush-rose most becoming to your type! Your lips will be more natural, youthful, not conspicuous with paint. Moreover, Tangee's special cream base soothes and softens, prevents lips from drying or chapping. Get Tangee today—costs no more than ordinary lipsticks. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look—make the face seem older.

PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look. It's coarsening and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

Checks mustn't look pale either! So use Tangee Rouge. Blends with your complexion. Gives the same natural color and matches Tangee Lipstick. Now in reliable gunmetal case. Refills save money. Also in Theatrical shade.

AMERICA'S RELIEF PROBLEM

With all its faults, the British unemployment insurance system undoubtedly stands forth as the most feasible and humanitarian method so far devised of dealing with a problem which is common to all nations at the present time. It is doubtless this factor which has induced the U.S. Secretary for Labour to announce that the United States is at present studying the British scheme with a view to the adoption of similar measures by America. At the present time, according to Miss Perkins, there are no fewer than seventeen million people on the relief rolls, on whom no less than $135,000,000 is being spent monthly, with no return whatever. The situation in the United States is even worse than these figures reveal, for quite recently it was officially disclosed that approximately twenty-three millions will be on relief during the coming winter. In other words, a sixth of the entire country is no longer able to support itself. More people than live in New York and Pennsylvania combined will get through the winter only through the assistance of the Government. All the relief problems that America ever had before dwindle almost to insignificance in comparison. It is to be noted, however, that the disclosure of the staggering size of the relief problem has not created any real alarm. The news has sobered the people, to be sure, and it has worried them—but it has not created panic. It has not led them to throw up their hands and look to inflation as the sole possible solution. It has not made the people feel that all the recovery efforts to date are a flat failure. On the contrary, people generally have taken a cool and sensible view. The problem is admittedly a good deal bigger and knottier than people thought it was going to be—but it isn't insoluble. Yet there is also a feeling that it would be wrong to underestimate the pressure which a relief problem of this magnitude can exert. For these 23,000,000 have to be taken care of, no matter what it costs; further, to see that they are fed and housed is only part of the job. Eventually they must be put back to work. That is the main fact, and it shows how complicated

NOTES OF THE DAY

LONDON TO MELBOURNE

As the day of the London to Melbourne air marathon draws near, it is of interest to review the chances of the contestants. There are sixty-four entries from thirteen different countries that will take part in the London to Melbourne air race. The countries with the largest number of machines entered are the United States with eighteen and Great Britain with seventeen. France has seven entries, Holland and Australia five each, while Denmark, Sweden, India, the Irish Free State, New Guinea and Portugal each have one entry. In the handicap event Great Britain has ten entries to five from the United States, and in the class devoted to speed only the United States has seven entries, other competitors being Holland and France with one each.

SPECULATION

There is a good deal of speculation about the possible winner. The conclusion reached is that the successful machine will have to possess an exceptional range combined with an unusually high speed. American entries should have an advantage in this respect, because in the United States great attention has been devoted to developing high-speed, long-distance machines for the trans-continental airways. In this connection, however, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, perhaps the world's most noted flyer, and Colonel J. C. Fitzmaurice both planned to fly American types. British hopes in the great air race, the greatest of its kind yet to be attempted, are centred on the new De Havilland Comet, which is believed to be exceptionally fast. There are other fast British entries as well, including a couple of Fairey Foxes. The British competitors are making thorough preparations, and they have had more experience on the route to Australia than their rivals in the coming race. The contest, as well as being a test for speed and endurance, will be one for navigation, and in this respect the qualifications of British pilots afford a good deal of hope.

EXCESS PRODUCTION

British farmers fall in competition with the farmers of new countries for reasons that have nothing to do with the inefficiency of the former. The main reason, says Mr. John Boyd Orr, is that the cost of production is higher in Britain. In new countries farming is run on extensive methods, which give a lower output per acre but a much higher output per man. In Britain there are small farms where there is a higher output per acre and a much lower output per man. In the Argentine there are cattle ranches where one man can look after three or four hundred head of cattle. In Britain cattle undergo indoor fattening in winter and require more than ten times the amount of labour to look after the same amount of cattle as in the Argentine. Thus it is the amount of labour required in Britain that makes for the high cost of production. Mr. Orr says it has been suggested that the present low price of food is a danger to supply and that production will become unremunerative and farmers will cease producing. He believes that those who entertain this fear underestimate the ease of production and the urge to produce. In the methods of production there is continuous improvement, and while the cost of production is steadily falling, it is difficult to predict the level to which it will fall in the future. Then he goes on to say:

CONTROL DIFFICULT

"In any case, at the present low price, it is difficult to stop the production of wheat. International conferences move from one capital to another trying to evolve a scheme to limit production, and so far the united power and authority of the governments concerned are finding almost insuperable difficulties in stopping people from growing wheat. The same is true of most other foodstuffs. The grass will grow and the cattle and sheep will reproduce with a supreme indifference to the world price for beef or mutton. Fresh fruit, which at one time was a luxury in winter, enjoyed only by the relatively well-to-do, is now sold off barrows in the streets to the poorest districts of our cities to the great improvement of the health of the community." He might have added, too, that distribution is a factor to be considered, and that though there may be a super-abundance in Britain, it could very well be consumed, for instance, in China. Is this an argument for subsidised shipping or a higher price for silver?

this relief situation really is. Much can be learned from Britain's treatment of a like problem, but the very immensity of the task only serves to emphasise the difficulties.

IS BRITAIN NOW DEBTOR NATION?

By ANDREW STILL

Editor of The Investors' Review

THE short answer to this question: Are We a Debtor Nation? would be emphatically No!—But the question no doubt has arisen in the public mind owing to the prominence given in the Press recently to the adverse exchange rates on London and the fall of the pound in terms of gold to the lowest level on record. A golden sovereign is now worth approximately 33s. at home, but the pound sterling is worth only about 12s. in certain world markets. Foreign exchanges are usually unfavourable at this season of the year owing to our heavy purchases of foodstuffs and raw materials, particularly wheat and cotton. In the old days the exchanges could fluctuate only narrowly within well-defined limits, because at a certain point it was cheaper to ship gold than to buy, say, dollars. If the outflow became inconvenient the Bank of England raised its discount rate to such a level as might be necessary, and the current was promptly reversed. Gold, however, to a great extent has ceased to function in this way, and the exchanges move in wide curves according to the size of the balance of payments between different centres, while mere speculators can take liberties which they dared not risk previously.

There is no doubt that speculation has been an important factor in recent exchange vagaries, but it is not surprising that there is an impression that we owe more than we have to receive—in other words, that we are a debtor nation. Temporarily, that is perhaps true as regards "current account." By far the largest item in international payments is represented by imports and exports of goods. For the seven months to the end of July Britain imported £163,680,000 more than she exported, an increase of £24,630,000 over the corresponding period of last year. For the whole of last year this so-called adverse trade balance was £264,000,000, and in 1931 it was as much as £408,000,000. These look very formidable amounts, and if they stood alone they would indicate that we are drawing dangerously on our capital resources. Fortunately, however, there are important offsets in the shape of what are known as "invisible exports." These consist mainly of interest on foreign investments, and revenue from shipping, insurance, banking, and other services.

The Board of Trade has for many years made a calculation of the total amount of these items, which is very valuable as a basis of comparison, although there are independent investigators who maintain that the official estimates are too conservative. However that may be, the results are interesting. Last year the visible exports were estimated at £260,000,000, so that there was an apparent adverse balance of only £4,000,000, as against £69,000,000 in 1932 and £104,000,000 in 1931. Every previous year for which records are available showed a substantial balance in our favour, with the exception of 1926, when there was a deficiency of £14,000,000. In 1928 and 1929 net income from abroad amounted to £475,000,000 and £484,000,000 respectively, and the total surplus for these two years was £220,000,000. It must be remembered, too, that a large proportion of the profits made by British-owned commercial undertakings abroad remains in the country of origin and does not figure in the returns, but is added to the sum of foreign investments. The sharp decline in these invisible exports during the past three years is mainly due to world depression accentuated by exchange difficulties and restrictions. It is estimated by the League of Nations Bureau that the volume of international trade has dropped 50 per cent. since 1929, and this has affected the earnings of our Mercantile Marine to an even greater extent. The chaos in exchange since the greater part of the world went "off gold" has prevented the remittance of interest and dividends (particularly from South America), and our income from this source has fallen from £250,000,000 to about £150,000,000.

So much for the position of our international "current account," which, it may be hoped, is merely a temporary phase. Behind that lies the enormous amount of British capital invested abroad. There is scarcely a corner of the world which has not been largely developed by British money and enterprise. It is impossible to estimate how much of this is represented by purely private investment, but it must be an immense sum. As to public issues, some idea of their magnitude may be gathered from the fact that in the Stock Exchange Official List, colonial and foreign loans and railways occupy no less than ten columns. In addition, there are numerous financial, land, investment, tramway, electric power companies, and mines operating abroad, scattered throughout the List and largely held by British investors.

Here is a small list of some of the principal items:

	About
Indian Government	£350,000,000
Indian railways	80,000,000
Colonial Governments	600,000,000
Colonial corporations	400,000,000
Canadian railways	200,000,000
Argentine Government	80,000,000
Argentine railways	200,000,000
Japanese Government	300,000,000
Tea & rubber plantations	300,000,000
Total	£2,350,000,000

Some of these securities and a small proportion of British Government stocks are held abroad, but our only important foreign obligation is the war debt to America, which, if enforced, is recoverable from Allied debtors. On capital account, however, we are overwhelmingly a creditor nation, and although some of our loans to Russia and other European countries, as well as to certain South American States, must be written off as bad debts, there is a sufficient balance to save us from worrying unduly about the future, even if we have to go a few years longer without being able to collect our just dues.

"You fellows should be careful how you go around slapping a man on the back."

The Very Idea!

WE TAKE A RIDE

By George

WE took our stand last week in the proud ranks of the automobile-owner-driver by the acquisition of a little bus which has been christened Scabby.

As an alternative to breaking a bottle of champagne on him when confirming the deal we buckled a wing on the garage door and jammed Scabby firmly up against it.

There was no backing out of the garage or the bargain then, so we are resigned to becoming a proud owner.

When we say we bought the car we are, of course, using the term very theoretically. With the budget as it is we fall financially as we rise socially. In this case the erstwhile owner thought he had done well to sell Scabby. In a month's time he'll be wondering if he's been sold as well.

We forget at the moment whether Scabby does 60 miles to the gallon or 15 miles per hour and it's difficult to tell when you're approaching Eva wearing green tinted glasses with the signal against you.

However, the first day we took her out will always remain in our memory with such dates as Queen Victoria's birthday and the invention of the button hole.

We began by sorting out the fire-irons into gears and brakes, and sticking little labels on to them for future reference. Then we juddered Scabby into first, ground into second and excavated into top before we found that the foot brake label had been stuck on the accelerator.

That explained a lot of things including the garage door but you wouldn't believe how much convincing a policeman takes when you run over his toes while he is on point duty.

A woman couldn't say half as much—which is another argument in favour of Eva.

A Case Of "Conscience".

President of the United States
America
Gentlemen:

I am in a dreadful state of mind and I thought I would write and tell you all. About two years ago, I used two postage stamps that had been used before on letters, perhaps more than two stamps, but I can only remember doing it twice. I did not realize what I had done until lately. My mind is constantly turned on that subject, and I think of it day and night. Now, dear President, will you please forgive me, and I promise I will never do it again. Enclosed find cost of three stamps, 6 cents, and please forgive me, for I am heartily sorry for what I have done.

WOMAN ATHLETE BEATS RECORD

MISS WALSH BREAKS HER OWN MARK

FURTHER RACES IN JAPAN

Miss Stella Walsh, the famous Polish-American woman athlete, whose real name is Mile. Walasiewicz, broke her own world's record for the 200 metres track at Osaka yesterday according to Reuters, when she returned the amazing time of 23 8/10 seconds.

Her previous record figures were 24 1/10 seconds, established at Chicago in 1932.

Miss Walsh recently passed through Hongkong on her way to Japan, when she announced her intention of attacking her own world's record marks. She travelled out to the Far East from England independently, after participating in the Women's World Olympics in London.

HOLDS THREE RECORDS.

She is one of the outstanding women athletes of the age. Although still at school, and right now "playing truant," she has lowered no less than three world marks on the track.

Her present world records are: 80 metres 9 9/10 secs. Cleveland, 1931; 100 metres 11 9/10 secs. Los Angeles, 1932; (shared with Miss Shuurman) 200 metres 23 8/10 secs. Osaka, 1934.

Her latest achievement is not yet, of course, officially recognised, but it is certain to be put before the authorities for this purpose.

Miss Walsh will be attacking her other records before leaving Japan, in the course of which she will compete against Japan's leading women athletes, who recently took part in the World Olympics, 1934.

NEAR TRAGEDY AT A FIRE.

IMMATES ESCAPE FROM BLAZING BUILDING.

Thrilling escapes were made by the inmates of the top floor of a three-story building at 378, Shanghai Street, Mongkok, early yesterday morning, when a sudden outbreak of fire cut off their ordinary means of exit down the staircase.

Watched by anxious crowds below, including firemen who held out canvas sheets, five Chinese adults clambered round a "wheel-like" iron guard jutting out from the verandah which separated them from the adjoining floor. It was a difficult feat, as flames and suffocating smoke were following them and at any moment the flimsy iron structure might give way.

All five eventually negotiated the risky passage and escaped down the staircase of the adjoining house into the street.

"It was none too soon," said a Fire Department official.

The fire broke out some 20 minutes after midnight, and although no time was lost for the first engine from the near-by substation to reach the spot, the house was already blazing from end to end.

Starting at a point in the rear of the haberdasher's shop on the ground floor, the fire soon got at the wooden staircase serving the upper floors, and made short work of it.

All three floors were severely burnt before control was secured.

The "home call" was sent out by the Brigade, and machines from the Kowloon Station reinforced the ones dispatched from Mongkok.

CRUELTY TO BIRDS.

CHINESE FINED AT THE CENTRAL MAGISTRACY

Whilst on duty near Blake Pier about noon on Friday, Sergeant D. Reidy had his attention drawn by a European lady, Mrs. F. Wright, to a Chinese carrying two sacks on a pole. On opening one of the sacks, he found seven or eight live paddy birds. The rest, numbering about 200, were dead.

At the Police Station, a similar number of dead birds were found in the other sack.

The man, Lai Leung, appeared before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Police Court on Saturday charged with cruelty.

Sergeant Reidy gave evidence, after which it was stated by Sub-Inspector L. Mist that the birds were mutilated.

Defendant: All paddy birds are bought dead. I sell them dead. I bought these birds at Cheung Muk Tau.

Sergt. Reidy: The sacks were tied with a cord.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $10 or fifteen days' hard labour.

One of the sacks, containing dead birds, was exhibited in Court.

CHILDREN'S BAZAAR.

SUCCESSFUL FUNCTION AT ST. PAUL'S GIRLS' COLLEGE

There was a distinguished gathering at the annual bazaar of the Hongkong Women's Guild and Ministering Children's League at St. Paul's Girls' College on Saturday.

The opening ceremony was performed by Mrs. Wolfe, wife of the Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, Inspector General of Police. The Rt. Rev. R. O. Hall, Bishop of Victoria, presided, and amongst those present were Mrs. Henderson, wife of the Hon. Mr. H. M. Henderson, Director of Public Works, the Hon. Mr. H. Kotewall, Mrs. R. O. Hall, Mrs. G. D. Black, Professor and Mrs. L. Forster and Mrs. Q. A. A. Macfadyen.

The stalls were attractively laid out and on them were displayed for sale beautiful knitted and embroidered articles, household goods, toys and dolls.

Many of the articles on sale were the work of the students of the College, while the following local firms donated to the bazaar: Messrs. Lane Crawford's, the Hongkong Hotel, the Swatow Drawn Work Co., the Blue Bird Cafe, Taikoo Sugar Refining Co., Ltd., and Messrs. A. S. Watson and Co. There were several articles donated by Mr. S. H. Langston.

In addition there was a fine collection of Chinese antiques, brass work, carving, ivory work and calligraphy on view.

Miss F. C. Woo, Principal of the College, wishes to express thanks to all who helped make the bazaar the unqualified success it proved to be.

ST. ANDREW'S BALL.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE NEXT FUNCTION

A meeting of the General Committee of the Hongkong St. Andrew's Society was held last Friday evening for the purpose of making arrangements for the celebration of the Ball to be held at the Peninsula Hotel on St. Andrew's Day.

After considering a memorandum on Ball Finance and the figures contained therein, it was decided that the price of tickets could not be reduced and accordingly, these were fixed at $17 double ticket and $17 single ticket.

Two practice dances will be held in the Peninsula Hotel on Tuesday 20th and Tuesday 27th November.

The following Convenors of Sub-Committees were appointed:—Invitation Committee, Mr. H. R. Forsyth; Dance and Music, Mr. K. S. Morrison; Supper and Wines, Mr. J. Murray; Decorations, Mr. G. Duncan. It was decided to dispense with sub-committees for Ladies Cloakroom and Card Room.

The hour for close of dancing at the Ball was fixed for 2.30 a.m. Similar arrangements for the transport of guests, i.e. Peak Trams and Star Ferry, were made as last year.

Picnic For The Blind

The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph,

Sir,—May I, through the medium of your columns, remind the public that the annual picnic for the inmates of the Blind Home at Pokfulam takes place on Saturday, October 27, at 2.30 p.m. It is hoped that the public will give its same generous support to this worthy cause. In addition to the picnic, a visit to the Home is arranged for at Chinese New Year when, if funds will allow, each girl is given a warm dress length or something of this nature.

Anybody who is interested and would like to join us at the picnic on the 27th will be very welcome.

Lau Mau, heads clear from a hot Army raid during yesterday's match between South China and the Army at Sookunpo.

SIX first division football matches were played during the week-end. Six were left drawn. This is a record in local football. It has also had this peculiar effect. The Football Club have four points from three matches, the Athletic and Rovers two points each from two matches and the Navy one point from one match, yet none of these teams have yet lost a game.

THE star attraction of Saturday—South China "B"—and the Borderers at Caroline Hill—emphasised that the Chinese second string are clever combination, possessing considerable talent which South China will be well advised to develop.

THE work of Lim Tak-po was especially commendable and in him one can see an excellent successor to Leung Wing-chui. The forwards were very lively, but Yeung Shui-yick has not yet recaptured that splendid form which earned him his place on the right wing of the senior outfit last season.

THE Borderers, weakened by enforced changes, were not in the same class as purveyors of academic football, yet they were unlucky not to win. Their determination and fearless tactics nearly brought about the collapse of the Chinese defence, who were somewhat blessed by the gods in the final stages.

"HOOKER" Jones got back into his stride with three goals. Very nice work. Morrison demonstrated that given the practice he could be as good a forward as he is a back. Herbert proved for all time that he is a back and not a forward. Podmore—but need I say anything? He was just Podmore, and that makes one think of football in its best aspects.

THE Club have largely themselves to blame for being held to a division of spoils by the Athletic. Both Ernest Strange and Albert Howie missed "alters." Territorially the Athletic were almost outplayed, especially in the second half, yet their defence remained beautifully steady, the result being a fitting reward for such endeavour.

THE Club were without finish. Strange junior was feeling his way all through the game, a fact not to be surprised at seeing that it was his first outing of the season after a recent illness. Howie was again only half heartedly supported. Half backs, with the exception of Pote-Hunt were unimpressive, although Andy Duncan did get in one of his old time pieces of work, when he rushed across to head out a certain goal. The Club played speculative sort of football. One could gamble on them attempting anything, but accomplishing practically nothing.

ONE of the best games of the day was seen at King's Park where the Rovers held the Lincolns to a draw and thereby further enhanced their reputation. Minus the services of A. V. Gosano, and with Beltrao forced to go in goal, the Portuguese did extraordinarily well. If any of their closing efforts had been tinged with the slightest bit of joss the Rovers would have won.

BELTRAO was sound between the sticks and Bowen showed wonderfully improved form. The work of Marques, Delgado and Gonsalves was most praiseworthy and Gomes remained the best forward on view.

THE Lincolns played quite well, and the football generally remained at a high level. Ridley, that arch-schemer spent the afternoon providing his colleagues with fine openings, from which Mc Guinness scored twice, but Dick might have been a little selfish with better results.

A decidedly poor game had a fitting result at Kowloon, where the Railway Ground club and Police drew. Kowloon have done nothing yet to invite the confidence of their supporters. The team lacks generalship and combination. An intensive study of co-operative movement between forwards and half backs would do a lot towards moulding together individuals who are not without skill.

THE Police were also guilty of the worst feature in local football; refusal to shoot at goal.

A Further
Ninety
Goals From
Matches
Keeps
Average

Numberless opportunities were wasted by Johnstone and his colleagues. Green spent all the afternoon planting the ball accurately in the middle of the goal and it needed only somebody with an idea of a shooting to score.

FOUR teams in the second division retained their 100 per cent. records. There were also goals in plenty in this division, six matches producing 42 goals. East Lancashires helped themselves to eight against the Young Indians, and this match produced the highest aggregate for the day—nine.

EAST Lancashires are showing championship-winning form in the third division. They plipped the Borderers by four clear goals, and have so far conceded only one goal in three matches.

THERE was some good average scoring this division, half a dozen games realising 28 goals.

IN all three divisions the total number of goals netted were 90 from 18 matches, an average of exactly five a match. So far this season 50 games have aggregated 255 goals, an average of five goals per match, which is extremely high. These figures, of course, apply only to league matches.

CHARITY benefitted, and spectators enjoyed themselves, as a result of yesterday's football matches at Caroline Hill between South China and the Army senior and junior teams.

SOUTH China first string won decisively, despite being without the services of Fung King-shing and Tay Quan-long. The man of the match was Ip Pak-wah, who not only scored three goals, but delighted all with his superb footwork and ball control. Exchanges throughout were bright, but the Army, although hard workers all, lacked the understanding and team work exhibited by the Chinese.

THE junior game was highly entertaining, the teams being well matched, and both going all out to give of their best. A fitting result was a draw of a goal apiece.

CHELSEA LOSE PRIESTLEY

Appointment in Ireland

Tom Priestley, the Irish International forward, for whom Chelsea paid a transfer fee of £2,000 in the summer of 1933 to Linfield, has been appointed headmaster of Aghadowey School, Co. Londonderry. He declined to re-sign for Chelsea at the end of last season as he desired to devote himself more closely to his profession as a school teacher. Chelsea hoped that he would return, and when told of the report that Priestley would stay in Ireland, Mr. Palmer, Chelsea's assistant secretary, said: "We have heard nothing about it."

The Chelsea F.C. annual report has been issued. Gross income from all sources last season was £32,857. Gate receipts amounted to £39,818, an increase over the previous season of £2,495. The result of the season's working shows a credit balance of £517.

BRITISH GOLF SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

THIS YEAR'S RECORDS SHOW BETTER AVERAGES

R. WHITCOMBE LEADS THE FIELD WITH CONSISTENT DISPLAYS

Dunlop-Southport tournament, and the Irish Open Championship. Very few professionals were engaged in all 24 major rounds.

The events taken into consideration are the big stroke competition: Open Championship, Irish Open Championship, Dunlop-Southport Tournament, Penfold Fairhaven Tournament, and the 36 holes qualifying rounds connected with the Rothamptons and Leeds tournaments. Five first class professionals, however, completed the whole 24 rounds, and came out of the season's events with very creditable averages. None of them did better than fours, Reginald Whitcombe heading the list with 72.95.

This, however, is excellent, considering the scratch scores over which the various events have been played. According to the English Golf Union's figures, plus an allowance of 75 (probably on the low side) for the scratch score of Portmarnock, where the Irish Open Championship was played, the scratch score average is 75.87, and all five men mentioned were well inside that score with their averages.

Four professionals of repute completed twenty rounds, having been absent from the Penfold Fairhaven tournament, and their averages for twenty rounds are under 75, while one or two others who completed sixteen or eighteen rounds all show averages well inside that of the scratch score, suggesting that British professional golf is in a strong position. Mark Seymour achieved a noteworthy performance with an average of 74.63 strokes for 22 rounds.

A FINE RECORD.

S. F. Brews, the Britisher who came to England from South Africa for this season's events, did not play at Rothampton or in the Penfold tournament, but for eighteen other rounds he had an average of 73, only .05 behind Reggie Whitcombe, who, by reason of his figures for 24 rounds, must be given pride of place in the averages.

It is a pity that Alfred Padgham did not play in the tournament at Fairhaven, because his average for 20 other rounds is the very low one of 72.05, and there is no doubt that he would have challenged Reggie Whitcombe for the best record over 24 rounds.

Those two were certainly the outstanding Britishers of the year, for each was successful in two important tournaments, and in each case won a stroke and a match play event. Whitcombe won at Rothampton and Fairhaven, the latter after a tie, while Padgham took the honours at Leeds and Southport.

Syd Easterbrook, who won the Irish Championship, has a very good average for 20 rounds (he missed Fairhaven), while Henry Cotton, the British Open Champion, played in only fourteen of the rounds, missing Leeds, Fairhaven, and Ireland. His average for the fourteen played is 70.6, remarkable figures, due to his brilliant scoring in the "Six round events," Open Championship and Southport, which included two qualifying rounds as well as the 72 holes competition proper.

Oxford's Rowing Start

CREW PRACTICE AT HENLEY

London, Sept. 19. Although next year's University Boat Race has not yet been fixed, the Oxford University authorities have already commenced work with a view to checking the run of Cambridge successes. Mr. P. Haig-Thomas, the old Cambridge Blue, who has had a hand in the training of all the winning Cambridge crews since 1924, is taking charge of the coaching of the Oxonians for next year's race, and he is following up the work which he commenced after the Summer Eights this year by getting an Oxford crew together at once.

Term does not commence at Oxford until October 12, but Mr. Haig-Thomas has created precedent by having an eight in training at Henley. Twelve members from the University took up residence at the Leander Club at Henley on Monday, and they are having two outings daily, morning and evening. The afternoon is devoted to work in the tub, and a fixed tub has been installed at the bottom of the garden of Thamesfield, the residence of Sir John Edward Moss. So far three Old Blues, M. H. Mosley, the President, A. V. Sutcliffe, and P. R. S. Banks have appeared in the crews, but another Blue, P. Hogg, is expected during the next day or so.

According to present arrangements the crew will remain at Henley for a fortnight, and Mr. Haig-Thomas is concentrating upon getting the men to work together.

The crew are using this year's Oxford boat, in which the Leander Club set up the new record for the Grand Challenge Cup at Henley Regatta.

The order of rowing last evening was: M. H. Mosley (Trinity), bow, A. S. Ogilvie (University), B. J. Scouting (University), A. V. Sutcliffe (Trinity), P. R. S. Banks (Christ Church), J. D. Sturrock (Magdalen), E. D. Tomlin (University), D. M. de Winter (Corpus Christi), stroke, W. G. C. Sheehy (Balliol), and G. H. D. Green (Magdalen).

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Since the earliest days of pictures, audiences have been quick to detect imperfect details on the screen. In the days of the one and two-reelers, there were the classic examples of an automobile flicking across the horizon for an instance in a scene depicting western action laid in the 70's or 80's. In "Palooka," the Reliance screen comedy which Harry M. Goetz and Edward Small produced for United Artists release, the opening scenes are laid along Broadway in the "rough forties" during 1910. One of the acts shows a young actor's cafe at the height of its glory. Scores of extras were outfitted with costumes of the period but when the action was rehearsed, the good old "A. D." found several of the men wearing wrist watches. And since wrist watches on men in that era were considered distinctly effeminate and since the party in progress was supposed to consist of two-listed sporting characters celebrating a prize-fighter's victory the tickers just had to go! Another thing the "A. D." had to watch was the tendency on the part of women to light cigarettes. Some women did so in 1910 but not in 1934, that is, if the head waiter saw them first. "Palooka," starring Jimmy Durante, Lupe Velez, and Stuart Erwin comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday. Marjorie Rameau, Robert Armstrong, Ray Carlisle, William Cagney, Thelma Todd and Gus Arnheim and his Orchestra are featured in the evening cast, under the direction of Benjamin Stoloff.

"Britannia of Billingsgate" is a brilliant Gaumont-British picture featuring that great actress of "Blind-Boys" renown, Violet Loraine. Gordon Harker, England's finest actor of Cockney characterization, is coming to the Queen's Theatre as the next change. Based on a play written by Christine Joppe-Slade and Sewell Stokes, the story relates the life of the Bolton family, who live in the Billingsgate quarter. Bolton a fish market porter, whilst his wife presides over a "fish and chip" shop. A film unit moves into the market to "shoot" scenes. The "mike" is installed just outside Mrs. Bolton's shop, and that lady, unconscious of the havoc she is wreaking in the sound sequence, proceeds to sing. Dismay amongst the film executives changes to glee with the discovery that Mrs. Bolton has just the voice they need for a forthcoming production. So she is "starred" the family, on the strength of her presumed success, soaring to affluence. While Bolton thoroughly enjoys the new life opened to him by his wife's essay into the film world, Mrs. Bolton regrets the free and easy ways of the market and longs to return. The climax shows how a compromise is effected among the family which ensures their future happiness. In Violet Loraine, British films have found a wonderful player, who in her first film scores a tremendous success. Miss Loraine is courageous in her role, rendering her wonderful number with an artistry that is inimitable and inimitable. Gordon Harker, who has claims to be considered Britain's greatest film Cockney humorist, is perfectly at home in the role of Bolton, the fish porter. He has the ability to get right under the skin of his characters, and his latest portrayal is a characterization which will win appreciation everywhere.

Scenes were filmed in Billingsgate Market while a studio reconstruction of the same venue was made. Dirt-track scenes were filmed at the Lea Bridge Speedway, and a number of "crack".

"Charlie Chan's Courage"

Credit Charlie Chan with making a hero out of Warner Oland. After portraying hundreds of villains on the screen, it fell to Oland's lot to play the suave Oriental detective in "Behind That Curtain." Oland proved to be such a perfect screen counterpart of Earl Derr Biggers' fictional character that he was cast for "Charlie Chan Carries On." Then came "The Black Camel," "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case" and "Charlie Chan's Chance." Oland's latest is "Charlie Chan's Courage," now playing at the King's Theatre, with Bruce Leyton and Donald Woods as the romantic leads. Although Oland devotes a great deal of his time to unravelling numerous mysteries in his latest picture, he still finds the time to further the romance between Woods and Miss Leyton. Miss Leyton is a new screen personality who was recruited from the Broadway stage. This is her first lead in the films, and big things are expected from her. Woods is a Hollywood boy who went on the road and finally to New York in stage work in preparation for a motion picture career. He was borrowed from Warner Brothers for the juvenile lead in the picture. Others in the cast are Paul Harvey, Murray Kinnell, Reginald Mason, Virginia Hammond, St. Jenkins and Harvey Clark. The film was produced by John Stone and directed by George Hadden. Seton I. Miller wrote the screen play from the novel, "The Chinese Parrot," by Earl Derr Biggers.

"Viva Villa"

Can you imagine Wallace Beery strutting a guitar by the light of the moon? Or singing a sentimental love song? Believe it or not, it happens in "Viva Villa!" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular story of Pancho Villa's life and loves. The playboy is the feature attraction of the Queen's Theatre. Beery plays Villa, Mexican war lord and revolutionary general and Villa, it developed during the production of the picture, was something of a gay blade with the ladies. Which makes it incumbent upon Beery to sing the song and strum the guitar in romantic mood. The baritone voice which once charmed audiences in the New York theatre, is somewhat rusty Beery found when he started to sing for the first time for the screen, but it still works. The guitar was easy, Beery is an accomplished musician. "Viva Villa!" is one of the most spectacular pictures the screen has seen in many a day. Filmed largely in Mexico, with thousands of peons taking part in many scenes, it assumed epic proportions.

"The Little Giant"

The thrilling sport of polo is given a new slant in the First National picture "The Little Giant," starring Edward G. Robinson, which is coming to the Alhambra to-morrow. While the scenes in which Robinson himself appears as a poloist are excitingly real, it is when his mob of a dozen or so gangster henchmen suddenly decide to try out the sport that the novel ways of hitting the ball are displayed to the audience. Totally unskilled in the ability to mechanics of hitting a ball with a stick atop a galloping polo pony and still more unfamiliar with the long stick while alternately perched on the horse's neck and rump, the gangster sportmen eventually find it more efficacious

CHAPTER XXX

Spring days with a hint of warmth in the air; rainy days with ribbons of silver mist floating in from the river and fog horns blowing. Boots lived through them all. Edward went to Nassau on a late March cruise and she missed his voice on the telephone and his laugh and his admiring glance. It was lonely and her room was full of the restlessness of spring. It was thrillingly painful on one of those blue-tinted evenings, with a quick, earlier rain drying on city pavements, to walk along the narrow streets, to see barrows of daffodils by the curb stone or a huckster with his wagon filled with plants for window boxes—panicles, pink geraniums, ageratum. And to be alone in the city in spring-time, Boots discovered, is an experience at once sad and sweet.

She wanted someone to enjoy the lengthening days with her, someone to jump the music that every burly, gurdy Italian played on his wheezy barrel organ. The radios along the shabby streets gushed music, too. And she was young. She went along on dancing feet.

Once she went to the movies with tall, blond, serious-minded Hilda Apfel who had been a student nurse but hadn't been able to stand the rigors of training. Hilda was popular on the seventh floor of Lucy's. She was a quick, eager, pleasant saleswoman. There was talk of her being made some sort of supervisor at Easter.

"I took you to right away. You're different," the wide-eyed Miss Apfel confided to Boots. "Sure, I like all the girls, but there's something about you. I could see you were used to better things."

She knew the whole story now. How Boots had sloped with Russ; Russ's death; she knew all about the 'cay, cramped flat in Astoria, with Gloria cutting out, slony blue and red silks under the glare of the overhead fixtures. Boots had told her all... her parents' anger, everything.

"You'll get over it. Things will come out all right," Hilda told Boots seriously across a cafeteria table. The chequer crust, the catsup bottle, the heavy glass pepper and salt cellars were between them on the gleaming white table. There were coarse, white-handled knives and forks. There were twisted paper napkins and heavy glasses of water and their plates, heaped with the simple, satisfying food. Baked beans. Brown bread. Waldorf salad.

"I know," Boots' eyes were far away. Strangely enough, it was not of Russ she was thinking at the moment. He and all the events of the past summer seemed far away. Why, already it was May. Soon the awnings would go up at the club out in Larchmont. There would be fresh suet cakes in the space beside the lady in hood. There would be young, bare, eager feet on the bleached boards of the raft.

"You were just a kid. You didn't know what it was all about," supplied Hilda gravely, consuming baked beans. "You were just all for a good time."

"I was just a beach club girl," Boots confessed with a frown. "I've come a long way since then."

"I'll say!"

"If it weren't for my mother I wouldn't care so much," the younger girl went on, gulping water hurriedly because of that treacherous lump in her throat. "I wish I could see her and be friends."

Hilda Apfel patted the hand that nervously bent a tattoo on the table top. "Don't worry. You will." "I'll come out of this," Boots said suddenly, fiercely. "I'll make something of myself; be somebody. Then I'll go home and show them."

Hilda gave her a shrewd glance. "How about the boy friend I've seen waiting for you at the corner of Thirty-fourth once or twice?" Boots coloured. "Edward? Oh, he's just a friend. A nice boy..." "He's rich, isn't he?" She shrugged. "Yes... I guess so."

"You guess! Course he is. I saw that car of his. There was a fellow came up to Hunter's Falls in the summer once with one like that. Minerva, isn't it?" "I don't know honestly. I never noticed."

Hilda gave her a wondering glance. "You're rich! Honestly you are. No wonder the men fall for you. You've got a—I don't know—a little girl way about you. That's what they like."

Boots flushed. "I haven't." "Well, take it from me he's someone to hang on to," Hilda offered, buttering the last bit of brown bread and eating it with evident relish. "This man's town is a hard one for a girl alone. Sure, you can earn enough to keep going day to day. But what about getting sick? What about a winter coat? What about getting older and losing your looks and all? I'd like to work up to be a buyer or something like Miss Madden or Mrs. O'Harrigan, but you can see for yourself they're both middle-aged. They've fought their way inch by inch and over dead bodies, too, if the truth were known," finished Hilda with her hearty laugh. "No, somehow I've got a feeling you couldn't stand the gaff of the store. You ought to set out to marry again and marry right this time. That's your line. You're pretty and soft and you've got nice manners. You belong in some cozy little home with a maid to bring you breakfast in bed and maybe a couple of babies after a while."

"I'm working my way through this particular hard time," Boots told her. "I don't want anyone's help."

Hilda afterwards when she had left Boots the conversation returned to her in its entirety. Hilda didn't understand, she told herself, with good-natured contempt. Like many other girls, Hilda believed Edward Van Sever was sent directly from heaven. Not that Edward had ever said anything definite to Boots about marriage. But there was something lovely in his attitude that indicated his thoughts might be directed into these channels.

No, she was finished with marriage, finished with men, except as playmates. She was going to fight her way to the top in the business world. Make people respect her for her attainments. Let Kay Chillingford with her soft, superior, throaty voice angle for the attention of every man present.

(To Be Continued.)

Her heart began to beat thickly, painfully whenever she thought of Kay.

"She has everything," Boots thought rebelliously. Yet there was a certain hardness, too, under Kay's air of complete femininity. Kay had made a success in the world of affairs, too. Kay had a fat salary check, had her own modern apartment (Edward had said) over in Beekman Place. All angles, Edward had said, and chairs made of cork and silver tubing, with a deep purple ceiling scattered with silver stars.

Once only recently Boots had had a glimpse of Kay in the store. Kay, in a charming spring frock of dark blue with touches of scarlet, had been wandering about with one of the buyers, Miss Bevan, touching fabrics, making notations. Miss Bevan had been openly subservient. From a distance Boots had watched the young Englishwoman, had heard her delicious, low-toned laugh.

She had not been able to explain the deep-seated resentment she had felt for Kay Chillingford. "Anyhow she hasn't announced her engagement to Denis yet," Boots had said hotly, proudly. "Anyhow it isn't settled."

It was only Boots reminded herself, that Denis and she would no longer be friends, once Kay had married him. Kay would be—you could see—the violently jealous sort. And Boots did long to see Denis, just to talk to him—nothing more. To feel his handclasp, see his long-lashed, dark blue eyes crinkle up with sudden laughter.

Once she sat with the telephone receiver in her hand in Mrs. Mooney's stuffy little hallway, the number trembling on her lips. But she had put the receiver down again. She had realized it would never do. When she could pay Denis back, and not before then, she would telephone to him.

She was saving madly toward that end at the moment. In the meantime she lived soberly, frugally, saving the pennies, washing out her stockings and underthings in the gray basin in the bathroom of Mrs. Mooney's flat, wandering rather aimlessly to movies and museums on Sundays. It was lonely, it was bleak. She was learning one hard lesson after another. Something hard and crystalline came to take the place of her girlish ease and softness. She no longer grumbled at hardships, but took the bitter with the sweet, with a certain philosophy older than her years. In the past she had been silly. She hadn't known how to make the best of things at home. If she had it all to do over again she would know better.

Sometimes deep in the night her pillow would be wet with tears. But in the morning she showed a smiling face to the world. She was brushed and tidy in her attitude in her stockings were exquisitely neat. She wore her little, cheap hat with an air. She had moments of feeling it was splendid to be a girl on her own, earning her living with the best of them.

And then quite suddenly summer shut down upon the world. A hot, breathless, brooding summer. That was another story.

KOWLOON BAZAAR.

UNION CHURCH FUNCTION COLLECTS $600

The annual bazaar of the Women's Guild of the Kowloon Union Church on Saturday was very successful, a sum of $600 being taken.

The bazaar was opened by Mrs. J. A. Fraser, wife of the Assistant Attorney General, at 3 p.m. At the conclusion of the ceremony a basket of African dainties was presented to Mrs. Fraser by little Dorothy Allen, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Allen. Mr. Fraser was also present.

The attractive stalls comprised: Novelty (Mrs. Durran); Woolies (Mrs. Grey); Needlework (Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Walker); Books (The Bible, Book and Tract Depot Limited); Sweets (Mrs. N. Watson and Mrs. Graham); Ice cream (Miss Malsie Tillery); Tea (Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Sweeney, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Miller, Miss Kempton and Miss Ella Brown).

The raffle of a night-dress case was organised by Mrs. Atkinson and Miss L. Calman.

A whist drive in connection with the bazaar was also successful five 24 tables being occupied.

The prize winners were: Ladies: (first) Mrs. Tinson, (second) Mrs. Yalland, (booby) Mrs. Atkinson. The Travelling prize was won by Miss Martin.

Mr. Noble won the men's first prize from Mr. Andrews, and Mr. Millington secured the "booby."

The raffle of the night-dress case was won by Miss Dorothy Smith. To work in pairs on a single horse, one to manage the steed and the other to swing the mallet. Eventually the mallets gave way to their trusty gaffs when they discover they can't hit the target. This is one of the amusing incidents in the attempt of Robinson, as an ex-Beer Baron, to horn in on high society after his retirement from the "beer racket" following the legalizing of beer. The story is by Robert Lord with Mary Astor in the leading feminine role. Roy D. Ruth directed.

PRIZE-GIVING DAY.

YEAR'S ACTIVITIES OF ST. PETER'S COLLEGE

There was a happy gathering of pupils, their parents and friends at the prize-giving day of the St. Peter's College, which was held on Saturday evening at the Chinese Y. M. C. A. auditorium in Bridge Street. The prizes were distributed by Mr. Ip Lan-chuen, after which the students performed a delightful concert consisting of many musical items and a Chinese play.

In presenting his annual report, the Headmaster, Mr. Thomas Te said, in part:

"The school was founded in 1927 and to-day is its eighth anniversary. During the first years of its existence, the number of students reached a maximum of 220 pupils. The number of pupils has been reduced mainly by the prevailing trade depression. In the present year the school has an enrolment of 120 students with a daily attendance of 93 per cent."

"In our annual examination we had thirteen boys enter the Junior examination, of whom eight passed. Fourteen students entered the Commercial examination with ten passes."

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "The Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will save us" (Isaiah 33:22). Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One? we shall not die... Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil,

CHILDREN'S CLINIC.

ANNUAL CHARITY BAZAAR HELD DURING WEEK-END

Under the distinguished patronage of Lady Peel, the two-day annual bazaar held by the Sisters of the Precious Blood Convent, in aid of their Children's Hospital and Clinic at Shamshuipo, was opened by Bishop H. Valtorta at the Chinese Catholic Young Men's Society premises at Caine Road, on Saturday afternoon.

In declaring the function open, Bishop Valtorta thanked Lady Peel, whose patronage, he said, was an inspiration and encouragement to charity-giving.

He also thanked many supporters, amongst them Mrs. J. H. McElroy, H. D. Matthews, Y. Y. Tang and T. Z. Bau, for the inestimable and excellent work they have been and are still giving to the Hospital and Clinic; the Hong-kong Society for the Protection of Children for a supply of medicine and milk; the British American Tobacco Co., the Kwong Sang Hong, Messrs. A. S. Watson & Co., and the Blue Bird Co. for goods for the Bazaar.

A variety of goods, all cheaply priced, was attractively laid out in a number of stalls. Besides the inevitable sweets and cigarettes, fancy knitted-wear was also being sold. Bunting and decorations combined with games for the children added to the gaiety of the fête.

The Bazaar closed yesterday.

and cannot not look on iniquity" (Habakkuk 1:12, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon, also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science reveals God, not as the author of sin, sickness, and death, but as divine Principle, Supreme Being, Mind, exempt from all evil" (p. 127).

WE THINK THIS IS A GOOD IDEA. WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?

It is our intention to inaugurate a request week. Hundreds of people have asked us to repeat some of the big feature screen successes of the past.

If there is some picture you would like to see again, write and tell us about it, we will make every effort to get it.

The seven pictures receiving the greatest number of requests will each be shown for one day during a designated week.

We are instituting this request week because we think that a good picture, like a good story, is worth repeating.

YOU MAY LEAVE YOUR REQUESTS AT THE BOX OFFICE OR MAIL TO VIC. HUGO, ORIENTAL THEATRE.

They change so fast, there should be a new picture at least once a year, for photographs of the children never grow up.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

DR. H. D. MATTHEWS SPEAKS ON MEDICAL MISSIONS

Hospital Sunday was observed at St. Andrew's Church yesterday by a special service conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. R. Higgs, and a sermon delivered by Dr. H. D. Matthews on medical missionary work.

There was a large congregation present and their donations, given at the end of the service will be shared between Church expenses and the proposed Robert Morrison Memorial Ward at the new Alice Memorial Hospital.

Taking as his text the words of St. Matthew: "Freely ye shall receive; freely give," Dr. Matthews said that this was the fundamental issue underlying all medical missionary work, which could be divided into the sections "medical" and "spiritual."

Noble work had been done by scientists in all countries in order to arrive at the degree of knowledge with which the world was blessed to-day, and it was up to all who could to impart that knowledge to peoples who had not yet received its benefits. Instances could be found in China and Hongkong, especially in the conquest of malaria, where heroism in a great degree had been shown by medical men; and they had this distinction apart from many other scientific investigators, that their work was not for personal gain but for the common good.

To assist medical missionary work, helpers could devote themselves to the actual remedial operations, by giving education on the subject, and by sharing in the work. The knowledge that real sympathy was felt for him or her went a long way to helping a patient to recovery.

One of the objections that had been advanced against the work was that it emphasised the material side and might thus interfere with the full development of faith which was very vital.

Dr. Matthews concluded with the remark that from his long experience he could say that nothing could give such a full and joyous life as that of the medical missionary.

CHINA'S SILVER

MOMENTOUS MEETING IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Oct. 14. An important decision on China's silver policy is expected to be made to-day at the meeting between the Finance Minister, Mr. H. H. Kung, and bankers and other advisers.—Reuter.

A Strong Remedy.

Shanghai, Oct. 13. In a statement made to pressmen this morning the Finance Minister Dr. H. H. Kung said that the Central Government would not further countenance the continued outflow of silver and was considering strong steps to remedy the situation.

Dr. Kung declined to reveal what steps the Chinese Government would take until the receipt of a reply to the Chinese protests from the United States Government.—Central News Agency

American Policy.

New York, Oct. 14. The Washington Correspondent of the New York Times says that Mr. Phillips, Under Secretary for State, has disclosed that the American Government's reply to China's protest regarding America's silver policy was handed to Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to Washington, to-day.

It is understood that the reply assures the Nanking Government that the U.S. Treasury will try to make its silver purchases in such a manner as to upset as little as possible the Chinese currency situation. It is understood that the note will be made public simultaneously both in Nanking and Washington, some time in the course of the coming week.—Reuter.

ADMIRAL BYRD RETURNS TO LITTLE AMERICA

Little America, Oct. 14. Admiral Byrd has returned to his base here, ending his long solitary isolation in the icy wastes around the South Pole.—United Press.

MANCHURIA WAR

VOLUNTEERS HOIST CHINESE FLAG

Changchun, Oct. 13. Emperor Kang Teh to-day attended Manchukuo's first grand military manoeuvres, which conclude to-morrow with a sham battle.—United Press.

Games of War.

Changchun, Oct. 14. The Manchukuo military manoeuvres commenced to the south of Changchun early yesterday morning and continued to-day under the supervision of Emperor Kang Teh.

The manoeuvres mainly took the form of a mimic war waged between a "Red" army and a "Blue" army, the former taking the offensive against Fu-feng Hill, a strategic point, which was occupied by the "Red" army shortly after the commencement of the engagement.

The fighting of to-day took place around Nanling, where the "Blue" army launched an offensive against the "Reds," who finally withdrew from the environs of Changchun.—Central News Agency.

Honour for Honjo.

Tokyo, Oct. 13. General Honjo, of Manchurian fame, is to be elevated to the peerage next March, with the title of Baron.—Reuter.

Rift in the Late.

Tokyo, Oct. 11. A verbal battle between the opponents of the Manchukuo Government reorganisation plan and the Japanese War Office is developing, following a statement issued by the War Office on Saturday advocating the plan and declaring that the Chief of the Manchukuo Gendarmerie should concurrently hold the commandship of the Manchukuo police forces.

To this argument a strong refutation was elicited from the Staff of the Kwantung Government charging the Office with obstinacy.

In face of this situation, Premier Okada appears to have adopted an attitude favourable to the War Office.—Central News Agency.

CHINESE CUSTOMS HOUSE IN HONGKONG

Canton, Oct. 14. The request of a certain section of Canton merchants for the abandonment of the suggested establishment of a customs house at Hongkong has been refused by the Nanking Finance Ministry, according to information secured from the local Chamber of Commerce.

A message has been received from the Finance Ministry to the effect that the Central Government has no intention of deviating from its settled policy, which aims at improving the maritime customs administration in Kwangtung.

In the same message, the Finance Ministry declared that arrangements had been completed for the establishment of a customs house at Hongkong and it would be brought into existence in the near future.—Central News Agency.

Branches in Hongkong.

Canton, Oct. 14. On learning that a Chinese maritime customs house will soon be established at Hongkong as an effective means of checking the smuggling wave, many Chinese customs agents are going to Hongkong to establish branches there. Local importers are also contemplating the establishment of branch offices in Hongkong in order to facilitate the transaction of their business.—Central News Agency.

STRONG CASE FOR SILVER

CIVILISATION AT STAKE

NEEDED AS LEGAL TENDER

An illustrated pamphlet entitled "Silver Money: The Case for its Restoration," contains what is described as a "precis of some of the world's most authoritative opinion" on this aspect of the monetary question.

There is a foreword by Lord Desborough, K.G., G.C.V.O.; Lord Greenway, Lord Hunsdon, Sir Henri Delord, K.B.E., and Sir Montagu de P. Webb, C.I.E., C.B.E., in which it is stated:—

"The principal argument in favour of gold is that the great prosperity of this country in the middle of last century was achieved under the single gold standard. But it is not realised that the world, and this country of course with it, was working under the bimetallic system, which maintained a parity between the two metals during the whole of that period.

"Since 1873, after the closing of the French and American mints to silver, this country seems to have lost no opportunity of further depreciating that metal. It debased our silver token coinage, and still presses the surplus stock of rupees on the market; with the result that silver-using countries are hindered from buying our goods and the growth of local manufactures in those countries is greatly stimulated.

EAST VS. WEST

"It would seem that some of the leaders of business, banking, and mercantile opinion in Great Britain have now realised that the great economic struggle of the immediate future is going to be East versus West; and that the East, with its many hundreds of millions of alert, industrious and willing workers, armed with cheap but effective silver money tools, are formidable competitors whom it will be extremely difficult to meet successfully unless Great Britain and the West also employ, in addition to their present monetary weapon, the same cheap monetary tools, and restore silver to the position that it has occupied throughout the ages."

Summarising the opinions given in the pamphlet, the case for the restoration of silver as full legal tender money, and as one of the backings of the paper currencies of Europe and America, is stated to rest on the following facts:—

"World conditions have greatly changed since the Great War; and, today, are wholly different from those of last century. "Silver is now of greater importance than gold; for whereas gold as currency has virtually disappeared (being unstable), silver money is a necessity in the East, in the Tropics, and in certain other parts of the world. Silver money is today legal tender without limit in China, with a population, say, 450,000,000; in India, population, 350,000,000; in the U.S.A., population, 125,000,000, not to mention Mexico and other countries.

GREATER STABILITY.

"The legalising of silver and gold together as world-money would raise world prices, and eventually make a more stable standard of value, i.e., greater stability of prices, than gold alone would or could.

"The raising of the gold price of silver would greatly increase the purchasing power of India and all silver-using countries.

"Western anti-silver legislation, whilst depressing the gold price of silver, has not lessened pro tanto its value, i.e., its purchasing power.

"In other words, wages and fixed charges in the East (paid in silver) have little varied in re-

TO MEND CHINA

BROKEN china can be quite successfully mended at home. Vases, ornamental plates, figures, etc., can be repaired with an almost invisible mending as long, of course, as the pieces have been carefully retained. Strong liquid glue for this purpose can now be bought in tubes for a few pence. The first thing to make sure of is that the edges to be joined together are thoroughly clean. They should be washed in hot water, and if any previous attempt at mending has been unsuccessfully made, they should be scrubbed with a nail brush dipped in strong soda water. When the edges are dry handle them as little as possible. Apply the liquid glue to the edges, seeing that all parts of the china are evenly covered but being careful not to use too much. Then the glue should be left for several minutes until it is apparently almost dry. Then the edges should be firmly pressed together and held so for a few minutes. When it is apparent that the edges are binding together, rest the article down in such a way that there is no strain on the join. Leave it for twenty-four hours and then remove with a knife blade if necessary, any surplus of glue that may have been squeezed out of the join.

cent years; which means

(a) Greater competing power by the East in selling its raw products.

(b) Reduced ability on the part of the East to buy Western manufactures as largely as before.

(c) A strong stimulus to the East to build up its own manufacturing industries with cheap labour, cheap money, and the latest modern machinery.

(d) Severe competition by the East in all the markets of the world.

"The continued neglect to incorporate silver in the world's supply of legal tender money may jeopardise and possibly wreck Western civilisation."

CATHEDRALS ON DOLE

FINANCIAL HELP ESSENTIAL

BRITAIN RESPONDS TO APPEAL

London, Sept. 25.

Seven of Great Britain's historic cathedrals are "on the dole," according to the latest report of the Cathedral Commissioners for England.

These world-famed buildings, visited annually by thousands from abroad, were verging on bankruptcy when the Church Assembly recently voted £18,000 a year for ten years to steer them off the financial rocks. It is estimated that the minimum income on which a cathedral can get along is £9,000 a year. Several were living on an average income of little more than £6,000.

The seven cathedrals hardest hit by reduced incomes during the last year or two are Carlisle, Chichester, Lichfield, Peterborough, Ripon, Salisbury and Wells. None of these buildings is less than 600 years old.

Chichester's income during the last few years has averaged less than £6,000, much below the sum reckoned by the Cathedral Commissioners as a minimum "living wage" for a cathedral. Peterborough's income of less than £8,000 will probably suffer further reduction this year. During the last 30 years the cathedral authorities at Peterborough have only been able to keep the fabric from collapsing by raising £100,000 in public subscriptions.

The precarious financial condition of many British cathedrals is attributed in the main to agricultural depression in this country. Most cathedrals depend to a large extent for their income on revenue derived from the lands they own. The withholding of tithes which the cathedrals cannot collect has also had a serious effect on their finances.

The granting of the £18,000 a year "dole" by the Church Assembly has eased the financial worries of the cathedrals, though several will still have an income below the £9,000 danger line.—United Press.

SOVIET GANGSTERS SHOT TO DEATH

QUICK JUSTICE FOR DESPERADOES

Leningrad, Oct. 10.

A bandit gang whose terrorist activities mildly rivalled those of the late John Dillinger in America has just been found guilty by a Soviet court.

The gang of three men, hardened criminals who had just been released from a labour camp, recruited a fourth member, an 18-year-old boy, and resumed their old trade.

First they robbed a State bread store, escaping with 8,000 roubles. This was soon spent on drink and women. Then the bandits looked around for new treasure.

They decided to hold up a wine store. After waiting outside until the cashier started to the bank, the gang knocked her down and tried to escape with her brief-case, which contained 5,000 roubles. But the cashier's cries brought a policeman running to the scene. Both he and the girl were wounded, but a crowd closed in around the fighters and held the bandits.

Soviet justice was fast and firm. The three adult leaders of the gang were sentenced to be shot. The youth was given three years in prison.—United Press.

TRADE
ADVANCEANGLO-SOVIET
BUSINESSFIFTY PER CENT
INCREASEBALANCE
SOUGHT

London, Oct. 10.
A marked increase in Anglo-Russian trade has accompanied the improvement of political relations between those countries in 1934.

The total turn-over of commerce between Britain and the Soviets in the first six months of this year has exceeded that of 1933 by approximately 50 per cent. True, this rise has been due partly to the adverse factor of the April-July, 1933, trade embargo which naturally dealt a severe blow to traffic between the two countries last year; the embargo followed the arrest of British engineers in Moscow. But even leaving the abnormal embargo situation out of account, the development of Anglo-Soviet commerce has recently disclosed signs of healthy growth.

The trend is illustrated by the following figures for the first six months of the three respective years:

	British Imports	British Exports	Soviet Imports
1932	$ 7,733,143	$ 791,810	$ 2,751,248
1933	$ 6,092,037	$ 474,667	$ 2,182,217
1934	$ 7,708,220	$ 1,229,160	$ 2,693,739

Mounting Soviet purchases on the British market appear to be the outstanding fact emerging from the figures. With a state monopoly of foreign trade prevailing in Russia, there seems to be no doubt that the Soviet government has deliberately turned away from the United States and Germany and looked more and more to Britain as the source of supply for the required minimum of imported goods.

POLITICAL ANIMOSITY.

Political animosity between Germany and the Soviet Union makes annum as a flat interest charge, making the total burden between 10 and 12 per cent. Some British banks, however, have been advancing short-term, six to ten months' credits to Russian enterprises on a global four to five per cent. basis. Average periods of credit range from 12 to 18 months.

But Soviet credit policy has undergone a radical change. During the earliest era of Soviet industrialisation, the Russians were in such urgent need of production machinery that they eagerly sought foreign credits on terms which, under normal conditions, would generally be regarded as even usurious. Nowadays, Moscow evinces no such avidity for credits. Indeed, about a third of Soviet purchases in Britain are settled on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

SHORT TERM CREDITS.

Prices have eclipsed credit facilities as the major consideration in the placing of Soviet orders abroad. Russia has lost interest in short-term credits and has nearly wiped out her outstanding short-term obligations in foreign countries. Nor are the Bolsheviks ready to pay more than the prevailing international interest rate for credits. Reasonable price offers have become the determining factors in the promotion of trade with the Soviet Union.

Anglo-Russian trade received a more stable foundation with the signature of the trade agreement between those countries on February 16, 1934. Formerly the balance of trade between them had ranged between three-to-one and four-to-one in Russia's favour. The February accord provided that the balance of payments shall be approximately equalised within four years, bearing the ratio 1 to 1.7 in the Soviets' favour on January 1, 1935 and, as from 1938 onwards, maintain a ratio of about 1 to 1.1.

Increase of Soviet purchases in Britain this year indicates that the stipulated balance will be attained by January 1, United Press.

Mr. Charles Chaplin is making plans for a new picture. Here he is at work at Lake Arrowhead.

it unnecessary to seek farther afield for an explanation of the ruthless reduction of Russian purchases on the German market. Formerly the chief beneficiary of Soviet orders placed abroad, Germany now lags far behind Britain. But the United States, too, has been among the losers in the international scramble for Soviet business. Smooth extension of government credits to Russia was blocked by enactment of the Johnson Law and failure hitherto to settle the Soviet-United States best problem has left Russian-American trade stagnant. Britain has consequently emerged from this muddle as the smiling third party.

As a result, cargo steamers have been leaving British shores, laden with tool machinery, iron and steel, equipment for the Moscow subway, sheet iron and special steel amalgams, as well as with re-exported lead, tin, copper, rubber and tea—all bound for Russia. A British manufacturer or merchant, dealing to the Soviets on a credit basis, enjoyed a 75 per cent. guarantee of such credits, granted by the British government.

IMPROVED CREDITS.

But credit conditions for Russia have of late improved here. Up to this year, the average insurance rate for dealings with the Soviets was 10 per cent.; now it has dropped to about 0.66 per cent. Beyond this, the Russians are paying approximately 3 per cent. per

OF DOORNSQUIRES' RIVALRY
IN HOLLAND
EX-KAISER'S
AMBITION

Doorn, Oct. 8.
While Wilhelm von Hohenzollern certainly never forgets that he is a world figure, the most curious thing about him is his ambition to be regarded as The Squire of Doorn.

But this is denied him. In Doorn there are at least a dozen Dutch noblemen rooted in the soil and assuming unquestioned priority. All along the highway from the village of Driebergen clear to Amerongen their estates extend; here they have been living—some of them in the oldest castles of feudal Holland—for generations. To them Wilhelm is still the foreigner, with no claim to assume any of the duties of the squirearchy.

However, the rich foreigner at "Huis Doorn" refuses to take this lying down. When Winter comes, he and Hermine set up their own private relief fund for the village poor; on Boxing Day the poor go to his castle and receive their parcels of food and clothing from the hands of Wilhelm and his wife. He invites the village choir to give an evening concert on his estate; he takes a practical as well as a financial interest in everything that concerns the village.

Just how rich he still is seems to be a matter of dispute. Baron von Sell, his public relations counsel and business representative, told the United Press in January that by the settlement between the State and the Crown in 1926, "the royal family had to renounce about five sixths of its private fortune" and that this fortune, the ex-Kaiser lives like a wealthy aristocrat rather than like a wealthy bourgeois. His household numbers about 60, all of whom—except the guards at the gates—gather for daily worship in the chapel at 8.45 a.m.

Actually the establishment is a miniature Potsdam. Within the gates he never forgets or permits others to forget, that he is Kaiser Wilhelm II of Hohenzollern. He has his Court Marshal, his aides, his staff and his Court Physician. Everybody has to stand to attention, to click heels when doing so, to refrain from speaking except when spoken to, and to obey meticulously all the thousand and one rules and ceremonies followed at Potsdam.

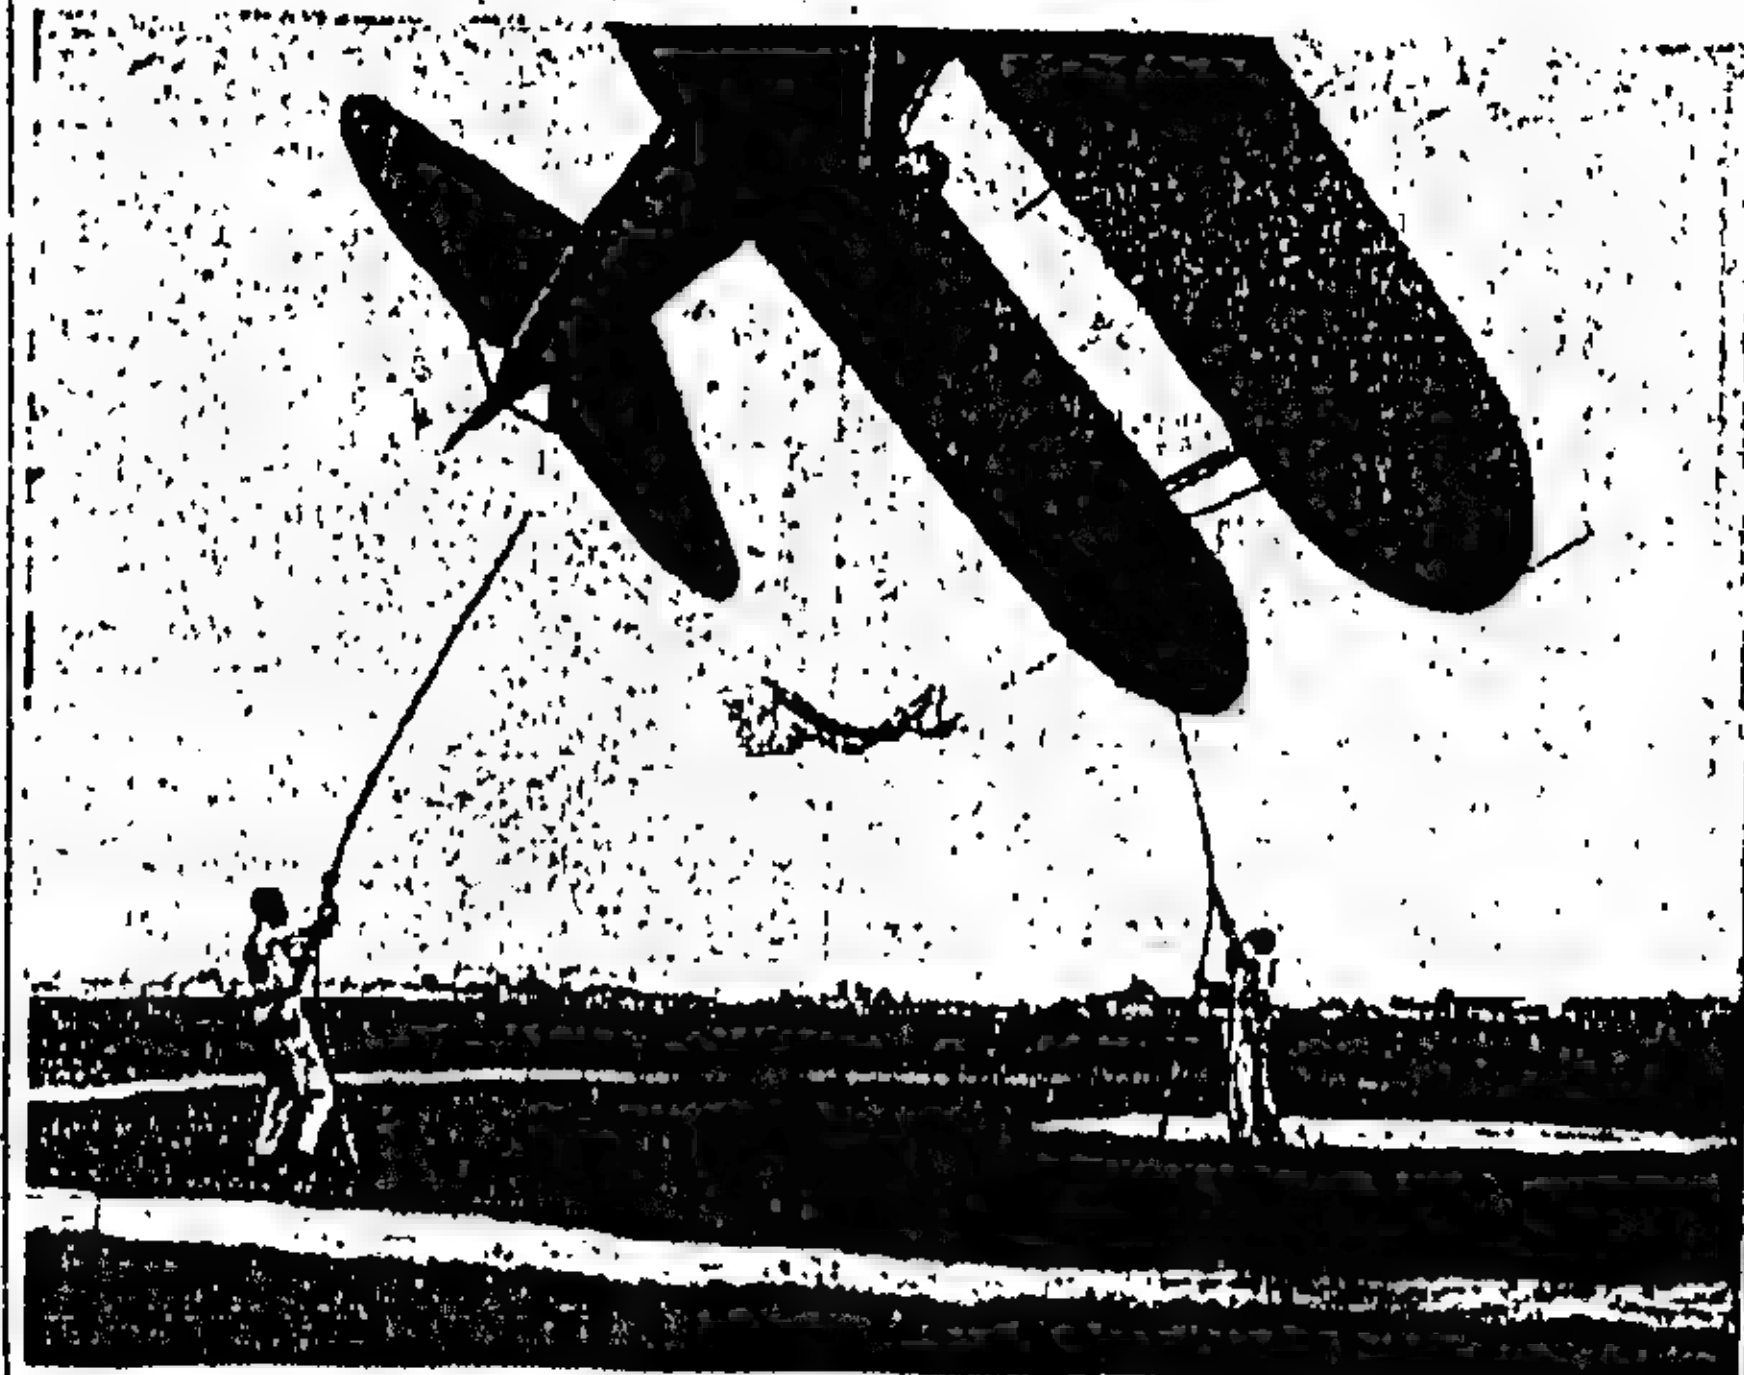

Meals—Even though he eats only the simplest fare and that sparingly—are always served in the most temporaneous, with a natural pre-occupation with the startling events in Germany.

KNOWS TO A PENNY.

His mornings he devotes to the management of his property. He is said to know to a penny what his income is. He has had many a quarrel with the Dutch tax authorities over his income. When he first resided at "Huis Doorn" he refused to pay Dutch income tax on the grounds that he was a political refugee. Finally he had to pay, under protest.

Thus he lives a dual life at Doorn. That of the country aristocrat, moving hatless through his grounds, studying his roses, thinning out his trees; and that of an international figure, head of an ancient House which the world has never completely forgotten and which, in the whirlwind of Time,

Milo Burcham, American stunt flier, picks up a table-cloth with his wing tip.

Fishing for amber off the coast of East Prussia where ancient forests are buried and the rare resin appears in large quantities.

residue "has to be shared among 17 households, comprising 40 members of the Royal Family."

"Furthermore," continued the Baron, "there remain other obligations, such as pensions, which have to be paid, although the bulk of the estate consists of landed property which has yielded no income for years though requiring to be maintained in a suitable manner by a large staff of officials, workmen and their families."

CARICATURE OF WEALTH.

Berlin estimates that the ex-Kaiser's private fortune amounts to 700,000,000 marks, were dismissed by the Baron, impatiently, as "grotesque political caricatures."

But whatever the size of his formal atmosphere; he invariably dresses for dinner and so does Hermine. On special occasions he dons one of his old uniforms—the brilliant uniform of the All-Highest Warlord. And although he is invariably the amiable host, we betide the careless or ignorant guest who neglects the prescribed court ceremony. He is never invited again.

But this "make believe" does not mean that the ex-Kaiser lives in the past or suffers "delusions of grandeur." His only concern with the past is to defend, in one book after another, his reputation and that of the German people from the "war guilt" charge. Other than that, his interests are intensely con-might once more figure in dramatic events.

He must have his own strong and even obstinate opinions about Hindenburg and Hitler, but all that he has permitted the outside world to know is that he "rejoices in the unity of the German people." He must know that many would like to see him seated once more on his old throne in Potsdam but no visitor had ever drawn him out on this subject. That his children and grandchildren stand in the streets and salute the Austrian-born ex-housepainter Hitler,—not a word of comment on this has ever issued from his mouth or pen.

He remains the enigma of Doorn.—United Press.

NEVER!
PALE, colorless lips may age your face—cause people to think you older than you are. But there is a way to make yourself look more youthful. Simply emphasize the natural color in your lips.
What you need is the lipstick that intensifies the natural rose of your lips without risking that painted look. This lipstick is called Tangee. It isn't paint.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE

In the stick, Tangee looks orange. On your lips, it's rose. Not plain rose. Not jarring red but your natural color. Tangee changes color to the one shade of blush-rose most becoming to your type! Your lips will become natural, youthful, not conspicuous with paint. Moreover, Tangee's special cream base soothes and softens, prevents lips from drying or chapping. Get Tangee today—costs no more than ordinary lipsticks. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look—make the face seem older.

PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look. It's coarsening and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

Check mustn't look pale either! So use Tangee Rouge Blends with your complexion. Gives the same natural color and matches Tangee Lipstick. Now in self-healing gunmetal case. Refills save money. Also in Theatrical shade.

Picnic For The Blind

The Editor,

Hongkong Telegraph,

Sir,—May I, through the medium of your columns, remind the public that the annual picnic for the inmates of the Blind Home at Pokfulam takes place on Saturday, October 27, at 2.30 p.m. It is hoped that the public will give its same generous support to this worthy cause. In addition to the picnic, a visit to the Home is arranged for at Chinese New Year when, if funds will allow, each girl is given a warm dress length or something of this nature.

Anybody who is interested and would like to join us at the picnic on the 27th will be very welcome.

LANCS. SERGEANT
CHARGEDRestaurant Incident
Before Court Martial

Charges of assaulting a restaurant keeper and a policeman and of neglecting to obey Battalion Permanent Orders were made against Sergeant Leonard Ernest Ratcliff, of the East Lancashire Regiment, who was arraigned before a Court Martial this morning.

The charges against the accused were that (1) he assaulted Mr. Chen Sul, manager of the Ki Ki Restaurant, of No. 67 Reclamation Street, Yau-mat, by striking a table and demanding beer after being told that beer could not be sold to Europeans, thereby causing the manager to fear that force would be used, (2) that he assaulted Police Constable B. 90, Bhag Singh, whilst being taken into custody, by adopting a threatening attitude, and (3) that he neglected Battalion Permanent Orders by entering Ki Ki Restaurant, Reclamation Street, Kowloon, contrary to No. 2, dated November 8, 1933, directing all persons to abstain from entering all streets to the west of Nathan Road, Kowloon, and from entering all restaurants to the north of Whitfield Barracks, Nathan Road, Kowloon.

All these incidents were alleged to have happened in the early hours of September 23.

The Court comprised Major F. H. Ledgerwood (1/8 Punjab), President, Capt. C. Rennack (1st Batt. Lancashire Regiment), and Lieut. E. Robinson (East Lancashire Regiment).

Lieut. H. Drury (East Lancashire Regiment) was the Prosecuting Officer, while Capt. R. A. Irwin (East Lancashire Regiment) was the Prisoner's Friend.

Mr. P. H. Sin was for the defence. Accused admitted the third charge but denied the others.

ACCOMPANIED BY LADY.

Evidence was given by Chen Sul, manager of the Ki Ki Restaurant, of No. 67 Reclamation Street, Yau-mat, to the effect that at 1.15 a.m. on the fourteenth day of the eighth moon, he was on the ground floor of his restaurant when the accused, who was accompanied by a lady, walked in. Accused and the lady went straight up to the second floor and entered the second room. Witness followed them up. Inside the room, accused spoke to him in English, but all he could make out was the word "beer." He took it therefore that accused wanted beer. He tried to explain to the accused that he was not allowed to sell liquor

THE OPEN DOOR

JAPAN OFFERING TO SHARE
MANCHU MARKET

Tokyo, Oct. 13. Reliable Japanese sources say that Mr. Koko Hirota, Foreign Minister, plans to recommend to the Federation of British Industries' Mission, British participation in investments in Manchukuo, also the conclusion of a trade agreement between Britain and Manchukuo.—United Press.

to Europeans, but as the accused did not understand him, he sent for a foki, who knew a bit of English. This foki told the accused what he had wanted to say in the first place.

Witness alleged that accused then became violent, and hit the table with great force. He once again asked for beer and Chinese food. Not wishing to make any trouble, witness asked his foki to serve the accused.

SMASHED A TUMBLER.

After eating and drinking, accused appeared to be a little drunk, said witness. He went into the next room and smashed up a tumbler. The time was now 2.15 a.m. As he was allowed to keep his restaurant open only up to 2 a.m., witness went to a Police Station and made a report. A Chinese detective was detailed to accompany him back to the restaurant. This detective did not arrest the accused, but went out and brought back an Indian and a Chinese constable. The three officers then took accused away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Sin, witness denied that all he was worrying about was the unpaid bill of $3.50. He was also worrying about the late hour, as he was allowed to open up to 2 a.m. Witness agreed with Mr. Sin that the accused appeared to be in a normal mood when he entered the restaurant.

In answer to the President of the Court, witness admitted that his licence did not permit him to sell beer to Europeans.

OTHER EVIDENCE.

Corroborative evidence of the happenings in the restaurant was given by Chung Shing, a foki in the Ki Ki Restaurant, who was called up by his master because he knew a bit of English.

Cross-examined by Mr. Sin, this witness admitted that there was an opium divan on the second floor of the restaurant. Lamps had been lit and pipes were in readiness for use by the customers.

Replying to further questions by Mr. Sin, witness said there were five or six more customers in the restaurant beside the accused and his lady friend.

The hearing is proceeding.

NAVAL POLICIES

JAPAN PUZZLED BY FORTIFICATIONS PLAN

Tokyo, Oct. 13. Naval circles here are not worried, although they are puzzled, by London despatches predicting that the United States naval delegation will suggest a revision or the elimination of the fortifications of the Washington Treaty.

Japanese naval officials point out that the expected termination of the Treaty naturally includes Article XIX.

Naval authorities are represented as believing that increased fortifications with a reduction in capital ships and aircraft carriers is preferable to increased dreadnoughts and aircraft carriers.

It is declared that American, British and other naval experts believe that "the Navy's the thing," because bases cannot move into another territory and are no longer vital to the movements of improved capital ships.—United Press.

This refers to the alleged American threat to establish new naval air bases if the 5-5-3 ratio is abandoned.

Britain's Armaments

London, Oct. 13. Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking last night in Birmingham, said that during the last few months events on the Continent had made a good many people very uneasy about affairs in foreign countries. That feeling found expression in the recent Conservative Party conference at Bristol, when it assured the Government of full support in any expenditure necessary to ensure the safety of the country.

No one in the world believed the British Government or the country would willingly do anything that would lead to war. Their whole interest lay in the opposite direction, Mr. Chamberlain said. All efforts of the Government had been directed to trying to remove the causes of war, but, he asked, would they not incur a terrible responsibility if, some day, through neglect, the country found itself unable to protect itself against hostile attack.

The Government had given long and anxious consideration to the problem, and reached the conclusion that in a world where no one had disarmed and where others were continually increasing their armaments a programme must now be embarked upon which would mean a very considerable increase in the number of air squadrons available for Home defence, and would involve the making good of some of the deficiencies, which had been allowed to accumulate in some of our other forces. He added that they would not, however, relax their efforts to prevent a general building up of the level in armaments.—British Wireless.

BOWLS SEASON CLOSES

HONGKONG ACCOUNTS FOR KOWLOON IN AITKENHEAD SHIELD MATCH

PRIZES PRESENTED AT DINNER

The official Lawn Bowls Season for 1934 was concluded on Saturday when the Aitkenhead Shield Competition was played between Hongkong and Kowloon in the afternoon, and an Association dinner held in the evening at which all the prizes won during the season were distributed.

Hongkong bowlers repeated last year's performance by defeating Kowloon by 44 shots on the greens of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. Some good bowling was seen, but the island links won the majority of the matches.

The dinner was held in the hall of the Kowloon Cricket Club, and was presided over by Mr. B. E. Maughan, President of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association. Supporting him were Mr. H. Hampton (Hon. Secretary), and Mr. G. E. F. Thompson (Hon. Treasurer).

The prizes were given away by Hon. Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, President of the Kowloon Cricket Club.

An air of conviviality and ease permeated the K.C.C. hall during the informal dinner which was held after the Aitkenhead Shield Competition was played. Over 200 lawn bowlers gathered together, in the words of the President, "to sing their swan song for 1934."

After a delightful steak and kidney dinner, supplied by Lane Crawford's Restaurant, the Chairman, in addressing the gathering, remarked that it was fitting that the Aitkenhead Shield Competition should mark the close of a most successful year, because in this Competition as many members of the Association as could be conveniently accommodated met together in friendly rivalry. It was the only day in the bowls year that the Association was divided in opinion, one side of the harbour having a difference with the other as to the merits of their respective bowlers.

"The result of the game to-day," the Chairman continued, "may be the means of changing an expression one often hears from, 'Do you live in Kowloon or are you married?' to 'Do you live in Kowloon or are you a bowler?'" (Laughter).

"However, the Association having this afternoon settled that difference of opinion for 1934, we meet this evening as one, to congratulate those of our members who have been successful in the competitions during the current year. As you are aware, the first division of the League has been won by those enthusiastic bowlers, the Craigengower C.C. The second division leaders are the babies of the League—the Indian Recreation Club.

"To these clubs, we extend our hearty congratulations, and I am sure those veterans of the Craigengower C.C. will forgive me for making special reference to the meritorious performance of the Indian Recreation Club. These young sportsmen have taken up the game with great enthusiasm and thoroughly deserve their success.

"The competitions organised by the Association, which are in excess of anything that has been attempted in the past, have reached finality. In congratulating the various prize-winners, I would particularly mention the unique and outstanding performance of Mr. A. W. Grimmitt, of the Civil Service C.C., whose name figures so often in our prize list. Each member of the Association joins with me, Mr. Grimmitt, in congratulating you on an achievement, which will be difficult to equal and very hard to beat. You will in due course be presented by the Association with a souvenir of the occasion, suitably inscribed."

Mr. Maughan expressed thanks to the Kowloon Bowling Green Club for the excellent arrangements made in connection with the Aitkenhead Shield matches; to the Kowloon C.C. for the loan of the hall for the dinner; to Mr. V. C. Labrum and his fellow artists for the entertainment during the evening, and to Madames Wilcox and Waterson for their assistance during the afternoon in collecting the sum of $162 for the benefit of St. Dunstan's Home.

In asking Hon. Mr. Lindsell to present the prizes, the Chairman said, "May I be permitted to extend to you our very sincere congratulations on your appointment. We trust you will be spared many years to serve in your high office and still find time to devote to the sporting activities of the Colony in which you have always taken such a keen interest." (Applause).

HON. MR. LINDSELL REPLIES.

In a witty speech which was punctuated by roars of laughter, the Hon. Mr. Lindsell thanked Mr. Maughan for the kind things he had said about his appointment as Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Hongkong. He also wished to thank the gathering for the way in which they had received Mr. Maughan's remarks. He could only hope that in two or three years, they would think the same. (Laughter). This was his first public appearance after his appointment, and he was pleased that it was before such a large and representative gathering.

An enjoyable concert was organised by Mr. V. C. Labrum during the evening. The artists comprised "The Imp Quartette" (Messrs. G. H. King, C. S. Trow, J. Goble and B. C. Kimo), Mr. P. H. Legon, Mr. J. G. Meyer and Mr. V. C. Labrum.

An orchestral number—by "The Jack High Five" was a promising prelude, whereafter Mr. Kimo's rendering of "Stonewacker Jack" was well received. Perhaps the most popular item of the evening was contributed by Mr. Legon, whose rollicking rendering of "Meet the Navy" brought the house down.

Another item worthy of special mention was "Nirvanah," which was sung by Mr. G. H. King, who was deservedly applauded for his effort.

HUGE DRUG HAUL

EX-CONSTABLE CHARGED AT KOWLOON COURT

Liu Po-lam, a former Shantung constable, of 113 Fuk Wing Street, faced a charge of having in his possession 83,000 morphine pills when he appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, at the Kowloon Magistracy on Saturday morning.

Revenue Officer Humphreys, appearing for the prosecution, stated that he conducted a raid on the defendant's flat on October 11, and the pills were found there wrapped in parcels. The pills had been imported from Shanghai.

Defendant had previously been a Shantung constable, but had resigned of his own accord, some six years ago.

His Worship imposed a fine of $2,500 with the alternative of six months' hard labour. An order for the confiscation and destruction of the pills was also made.

AMERICA'S RELIEF PROBLEM

With all its faults, the British unemployment insurance system undoubtedly stands forth as the most feasible and humanitarian method so far devised of dealing with a problem which is common to all nations at the present time. It is doubtless this factor which has induced the U.S. Secretary for Labour to announce that the United States is at present studying the British scheme with a view to the adoption of similar measures by America. At the present time, according to Miss Perkins, there are no fewer than seventeen million people on the relief rolls, on whom no less than $135,000,000 is being spent monthly, with no return whatever. The situation in the United States is even worse than these figures reveal, for quite recently it was officially disclosed that approximately twenty-three millions will be on relief during the coming winter. In other words, a sixth of the entire country is no longer able to support itself. More people than live in New York and Pennsylvania combined will get through the winter only through the assistance of the Government. All the relief problems that America ever had before dwindle almost to insignificance in comparison. It is to be noted, however, that the disclosure of the staggering size of the relief problem has not created any real alarm. The news has sobered the people, to be sure, and it has worried them—but it has not created panic. It has not led them to throw up their hands and look to inflation as the sole possible solution. It has not made the people feel that all the recovery efforts to date are a flat failure. On the contrary, people generally have taken a cool and sensible view. The problem is admittedly a good deal bigger and knottier than people thought it was going to be—but it isn't insoluble. Yet there is also a feeling that it would be wrong to underestimate the pressure which a relief problem of this magnitude can exert. For these 23,000,000 have to be taken care of, no matter what it costs; further, to see that they are fed and housed is only part of the job. Eventually they must be put back to work. That is the main fact, and it shows how complicated

NOTES OF THE DAY

LONDON TO MELBOURNE

As the day of the London to Melbourne air marathon draws near, it is of interest to review the chances of the contestants. There are sixty-four entries, thirteen different countries that will take part in the London to Melbourne air race. The countries with the largest number of machines entered are the United States with eighteen and Great Britain with seventeen. France has seven entries, Holland and Australia five each, New Zealand four, two from Italy, while Denmark, Sweden, India, the Irish Free State, New Guinea and Portugal each have one entry. In the handicap event Great Britain has ten entries to five from the United States, and in the class devoted to speed only the United States has seven entries, other competitors being Holland and France with one each.

SPECULATION

There is a good deal of speculation about the possible winner. The conclusion reached is that the successful machine will have to possess an exceptional range combined with an unusually high speed. American entries should have an advantage in this respect, because in the United States great attention has been devoted to developing high-speed, long-distance machines for the trans-continental airways. In this connection, however, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, perhaps the world's most noted flyer, and Colonel J. C. Fitzmaurice, both planned to fly American types. British hopes in the great air race, the greatest of its kind yet to be attempted, are centred on the new De Havilland Comet, which is believed to be exceptionally fast. There are other fast British entries as well, including a couple of Fairey Foxes. The British competitors are making thorough preparations, and they have had more experience on the route to Australia than their rivals in the coming race. The contest, as well as being a test for speed and endurance, will be one for navigation, and in this respect the qualifications of British pilots afford a good deal of hope.

EXCESS PRODUCTION
British farmers fall in competition with the farmers of new countries for reasons that have nothing to do with the inefficiency of the former. The main reason, says Mr. John Boyd Orr, is that the cost of production is higher in Britain. In new countries farming is run on extensive methods, which give a lower output per acre but a much higher output per man. In Britain there are small farms where there is a higher output per acre and a much lower output per man. In the Argentine there are cattle ranches where one man can look after three or four hundred head of cattle. In Britain cattle undergo indoor fattening in winter and require more than ten times the amount of labour to look after the same amount of cattle as in the Argentine. Thus it is the amount of labour required in Britain that makes for the high cost of production. Mr. Orr says it has been suggested that the present low price of food is a danger to supply and that production will become unremunerative and farmers will cease producing. He believes that those who entertain this fear underestimate the ease of production and the urge to produce. In the methods of production there is continuous improvement, and, while the cost of production is steadily falling, it is difficult to predict the level to which it will fall in the future. Then he goes on to say:

CONTROL DIFFICULT

"In any case, at the present low price, it is difficult to stop the production of wheat. International conferences move from one capital to another trying to evolve a scheme to limit production, and so far the united power and authority of the governments concerned are finding almost insuperable difficulties in stopping people from growing wheat. The same is true of most other foodstuffs. The grass will grow and the cattle and sheep will reproduce with a supreme indifference to the world price for beef or mutton. Fresh fruit, which at one time was a luxury in winter, enjoyed only by the relatively well-to-do, is now sold off barrows in the streets in the poorest districts of our cities to the great improvement of the health of the community." He might have added, too, that distribution is a factor to be considered, and that though there may be a super-abundance in Britain, it could very well be consumed, for instance, in China. Is this an argument for subsidised shipping or a higher price for silver?

This relief situation really is. Much can be learned from Britain's treatment of a like problem, but the very immensity of the task only serves to emphasise the difficulties.

IS BRITAIN NOW DEBTOR NATION?

By ANDREW STILL

Editor of The Investors' Review

THE short answer to this question: Are We a Debtor Nation? would be emphatically No!—But the question no doubt has arisen in the public mind owing to the prominence given in the Press recently to the adverse exchange rates on London and the fall of the pound in terms of gold to the lowest level on record. A golden sovereign is now worth approximately 33s. at home, but the pound sterling is worth only about 12s. in certain world markets. Foreign exchanges are usually unfavourable at this season of the year owing to our heavy purchases of foodstuffs and raw materials, particularly wheat and cotton. In the old days the exchanges could fluctuate only narrowly within well-defined limits, because at a certain point it was cheaper to ship gold than to buy, say, dollars. If the outflow became inconvenient the Bank of England raised its discount rate to such a level as might be necessary, and the current was promptly reversed. Gold, however, to a great extent has ceased to function in this way, and the exchanges move in wide curves according to the size of the balance of payments between different centres, while more speculators can take liberties which they dared not risk previously.

There is no doubt that speculation has been an important factor in recent exchange vagaries, but it is not surprising that there is an impression that we owe more than we have to receive—in other words, that we are a debtor nation. Temporarily, that is perhaps true as regards "current account." By far the largest item in international payments is represented by imports and exports of goods. For the seven months to the end of July Britain imported £163,680,000 more than she exported, an increase of £24,630,000 over the corresponding period of last year. For the whole of last year this so-called adverse trade balance was £264,000,000, and in 1931 it was as much as £408,000,000. These look very formidable amounts, and if they stood alone they would indicate that we are drawing dangerously on our capital resources. Fortunately, however, there are important offsets in the shape of what are known as "invisible exports." These consist mainly of interest on foreign investments, and revenue from shipping, insurance, banking, and other services.

The Board of Trade has for many years made a calculation of the total amount of these items, which is very valuable as a basis of comparison, although there are independent investigators who maintain that the official estimates are too conservative. However that may be, the results are interesting. Last year the visible exports were estimated at £260,000,000, so that there was an apparent adverse balance of only £4,000,000, as against £59,000,000 in 1932 and £104,000,000 in 1931. Every previous year for which records are available showed a substantial balance in our favour, with the exception of 1926, when there was a deficiency of £14,000,000. In 1928 and 1929 net income from abroad amounted to £476,000,000 and £484,000,000 respectively, and the total surplus for these two years was £226,000,000. It must be remembered, too, that a large proportion of the profits made by British-owned commercial undertakings abroad remains in the country of origin and does not figure in the returns, but is added to the sum of foreign investments. The sharp decline in these invisible exports during the past three years is mainly due to world depression accentuated by exchange difficulties and restrictions. It is estimated by the League of Nations Bureau that the volume of international trade has dropped 50 per cent. since 1929, and this has affected the earnings of our Mercantile Marine to an even greater extent. The chaos in exchanges, since the greater part of the world went "off gold," has prevented the remittance of interest and dividends (particularly from South America), and our income from this source has fallen from £250,000,000 to about £150,000,000.

So much for the position of our international "current account," which, it may be hoped, is merely a temporary phase. Behind, that lies the enormous amount of British capital invested abroad. There is scarcely a corner of the world which has not been largely developed by British money and enterprise. It is impossible to estimate how much of this is represented by purely private investment, but it must be an immense sum. As to public issues, some idea of their magnitude may be gathered from the fact that in the Stock Exchange Official List, colonial and foreign loans and railways occupy no less than ten columns. In addition, there are numerous financial, land, investment, tramway, electric power companies, and mines operating abroad, scattered throughout the List and largely held by British investors.

Here is a small list of some of the principal items:

	About
Indian Government .....	£350,000,000
Indian railways .....	80,000,000
Colonial Governments .....	600,000,000
Colonial corporations .....	400,000,000
Canadian railways .....	200,000,000
Argentine Government .....	80,000,000
Argentine railways .....	250,000,000
Japanese Government .....	90,000,000
Tee & rubber plantations .....	300,000,000
	£2,350,000,000

Some of these securities and a small proportion of British Government stocks are held abroad, but our only important foreign obligation is the war debt to America, which, if enforced, is recoverable from Allied debtors. On capital account, however, we are overwhelmingly a creditor nation, and although some of our loans to Russia and other European countries, as well as to certain South American States, must be written off as bad debts, there is a sufficient balance to save us from worrying unduly about the future, even if we have to go a few years longer without being able to collect our just dues.

"You fellows should be careful how you go around slapping a man on the back."

The Very Idea!

WE TAKE A RIDE

By George

WE took our stand last week in the proud ranks of the automobile-owner-driver by the acquisition of a little bus which has been christened Scabby.

As an alternative to breaking a bottle of champagne on him when confirming the deal we buckled a wing on the garage door and jammed Scabby firmly up against it.

There was no backing out of the garage or the bargain then, so we are resigned to becoming a proud owner.

When we say we bought the car we are, of course, using the term very theoretically. With the budget as it is we fall financially as we rise socially. In this case the erstwhile owner, though, he had done well to sell Scabby. In a month's time he'll be wondering if he's been sold as well.

We forget at the moment whether Scabby does 60 miles to the gallon or 15 miles per hour and it's difficult to tell when you're approaching Eva wearing green tinted glasses with the signal against you.

However the first day we took her out will always remain in our memory with such dates as Queen Victoria's birthday and the invention of the button hole.

We began by sorting out the fire-irons into gears and brakes, and sticking little labels on to them for future reference. Then we juddered Scabby into first, ground into second and excavated into top before we found that the foot brake label had been stuck on the accelerator.

That explained a lot of things including the garage door but you wouldn't believe how much convincing a policeman takes when you run over his toes while he is on point duty.

A woman couldn't say half as much—which is another argument in favour of Eva.

A Case Of "Conscience".

President of the United States America

Gentleman:

I am in a dreadful state of mind and I thought I would write and tell you all. About two years ago, I used two postage stamps that had been used before on letters, perhaps more than two stamps, but I can only remember doing it twice. I did not realize what I had done until lately. My mind is constantly turned on that subject, and I think of it day and night. Now, dear President, will you please forgive me, and I promise I will never do it again. Enclosed find cost of three stamps, 6 cents, and please forgive me, for I am heartily sorry for what I have done.

CONDUCTED BY "VERITAS"

Lau Mau, heads clear from a hot Army raid during yesterday's match between South China and the Army at Sookunpo.

SIX first division football matches were played during the week-end. Six were left drawn. This is a record in local football. It has also had this peculiar effect. The Football Club have four points from three matches, East Lancshires three points from three matches, the Athletic and Recreation two points each from two matches and the Navy one point from one match, yet none of these teams have yet lost a game.

THE star attraction of Saturday—South China "B" and the Borderers at Caroline Hill—emphasised that the Chinese second string are clever combination, possessing considerable talent which South China will be well advised to develop.

THE work of Lim Tak-po was especially commendable and in him one can see an excellent successor to Leung Wing-chui. The forwards were very lively, but Keung Shui-yick has not yet recaptured that splendid form which earned him his place on the right wing of the senior outfit last season.

THE Borderers, weakened by enforced changes, were not in the same class as purveyors of academic football, yet they were unlucky not to win. Their determination and forceful tactics nearly brought about the collapse of the Chinese defence, who were somewhat blessed by the gods in the final stages.

"HOOKER" Jones got back into his stride with three goals. Very nice work. Morrison demonstrated that given the practice he could be as good a forward as he is a back. Herbert proved for all time that he is a back and not a forward. Podmore—but need I say anything? He was just Podmore, and that makes one think of football in its best aspects.

THE Club have largely themselves to blame for being held to a division of spoils by the Athletic. Both Ernest Strange and Albert Howe missed "sitters." Territorially the Athletic were almost outplayed, especially in the second half, yet their defence remained beautifully steady, the result being a fitting reward for such endeavour.

THE Club were without finish. Strange junior was feeling his way all through the game, a fact not to be surprised about seeing that it was his first outing of the season after a recent illness. Howe was again only half heartedly supported. Half backs, with the exception of Pote-Hunt were unimpressive, although Andy Duncan did get in one of his old time pieces of work when he rushed across to head out a certain goal. The Club played speculative sort of football. One could gamble on them attempting anything, but accomplishing practically nothing.

ONE of the best games of the day was seen at King's Park where the Recreation held the Lincoln to draw and thereby further enhanced their reputation. Minus the services of A. V. Gosano, and with Boltrao forced to go in goal, the Portuguese did extraordinarily well. If any of their closing efforts had been tinged with the slightest bit of joss the Recreation would have won.

BELTRAO was sound between the sticks and Bowen showed wonderfully improved form. The work of Marques, Delgado and Gonsalves was most praiseworthy and Gomes remained the best forward on view.

THE Lincoln played quite well, and the football generally remained at a high level. Riley, that arch-schemer spent the afternoon providing his colleagues with fine openings, from which McGuinness scored twice, but Dick might have been a little selfish with better results.

A decidedly poor game had a fitting result at Kowloon, where the Railway Ground club and Police drew. Kowloon have done nothing yet to invite the confidence of their supporters. The team lacks generalship and combination. An intensive study of co-operative movement between forwards and half backs would do a lot towards moulding together individuals who are not without skill.

THE Police were also guilty of the worst feature in local football; refusal to shoot at goal.

NAVY & ST. JOSEPH'S IN TIRESOME GAME

TWO FORWARD LINES WITHOUT ANY SPARKLE

DEFENCES ON TOP IN MATCH OF MIDFIELD EXCHANGES

(By "Veritas").

A tedious game of tiresome midfield exchanges and missed opportunities resulted in St. Joseph's and the Navy playing a goalless draw on the Kowloon Football Club ground yesterday, when the Navy made their initial appearance in the league this season.

The Navy needed but a spark of life and initiative among the forwards to win the match easily, but they toyed with the ball in front of goal, permitting the fast moving Saint defence to clear every time. St. Joseph's gave not the slightest hint of reproducing the encouraging form they displayed against the Club, and were a somewhat unimpressive collection of players, emulating the Navy in shortcomings among the forwards.

Passes on both sides went sadly astray, all the players finding difficulty in controlling a lively ball. The Navy were chief offenders, either sending the ball through too quickly or hugging it too closely. Co-ordination between attack and defence was decidedly no feature of the match, and a lethargy, which started with St. Joseph's, slowly but insistently spread to the Navy, and in the final stages the exchanges were not worthy of third division.

UNLIKE LAST YEAR.

The Navy, although but a shadow of last year's powerful team, included several of those worthy players, but the difference between the teams was as chalk to cheese. McGuire put in a lot of work at centre-half, but he seemed to be thinking too far ahead for his colleagues in front, and saw many clever ideas ruined through lack of anticipation on their part. He was a good spoiler and allowed Ward and Rocha very little rope.

West at left back was also prominent, remaining cool under any sort of pressure, while Lovo at left half caught the eye with some untiring labour. Smith, one of the cleverest inside rights in local football last season, disappointed, revealing only rare flashes of that neat footwork and ball control which had hitherto tied defences up in knots.

Kernick and Stanley dalled instead of shooting, while Fairless was obliterated by the ubiquitous Elms, and Martin too obvious in his movements to upset Gomes or Victor.

passed before drawing the opposition and invariably they lacked a shot when in a fine position to score.

A first half display of vim was not maintained, and once they had lost this, the result was obvious.

SAINTS "OFF DAY"

St. Joseph's had a distinctly "off day." Although better together than the Navy and more accurate in ball distribution, they were too slow to progress far, and it was not until the second half that the forwards became "dangerous" on the attack.

The bottling up of Rocha and Ward did much to disorganise the forward line, the rest of the forwards lacking the necessary skill to make up for the deficiency. Sim tried hard, but was poorly supported by "Darkie" Lee, and over on the left, Fernandez played a lone game and could not be expected to make very much of an impression.

Elms alone retained up to the mark form. He was not only the best half back on the field, but the leading player. Splendid anticipation allied with cleverness permitted him to extricate the Saints defence from several compromising positions, and he alone showed any idea of how and where to find his forwards.

BEST FORGOTTEN.

The game itself was practically featureless. The Navy had the greater share of territorial advantage, and forced at least a dozen corners during the game. Nevertheless goals were always a very unlikely occurrence. The result itself was fair enough, but the game which produced the result cannot be put into the same category. It was one of those matches one prefers not to remember.

A Further
18
Matches
Keeps
Average

Numberless opportunities were wasted by Johnstone and his colleagues. Green spent all the afternoon planting the ball accurately in the middle of the goal and it needed only somebody with an idea of a shooting to score.

FOUR teams in the second division retained their 100 per cent. records. There were also goals in plenty in this division, six matches producing 42 goals. East Lancshires helped themselves to eight against the Young Indians, and this match produced the highest aggregate for the day—nine.

EAST Lancshires are showing championship-winning form in the third division. They pipped the Borderers by four clear goals, and have so far conceded only one goal in three matches.

THERE was some good average scoring this division; half a dozen games realising 28 goals.

IN all three divisions the total number of goals netted were 50 from 18 matches, an average of exactly five a match. So far this season 50 games have aggregated 255 goals, an average of five goals per match, which is extremely high. These figures, of course, apply only to league matches.

CHARITY benefited, and spectators enjoyed themselves, as a result of yesterday's football matches at Caroline Hill between South China and the Army senior and junior teams.

SOUTH China first string won decisively, despite being without the services of Fung King-shing and Tay Qu-long. The man of the match was Ip Pak-wah, who not only scored three goals, but delighted all with his superb footwork and ball control. Exchanges throughout were bright, but the Army, although hard workers all, lacked the understanding and team work exhibited by the Chinese.

THE junior game was highly entertaining, the teams being well matched, and both going out to give of their best. A fitting result was a draw of a goal apiece.

CHELSEA LOSE PRIESTLEY

Appointment in Ireland

Tom Priestley, the Irish International forward, for whom Chelsea paid a transfer fee of £2,000 in the summer of 1933 to Linfield, has been appointed headmaster of Aghadowey School, Co. Londonderry. He declined to re-sign for Chelsea at the end of last season as he desired to devote himself more closely to his profession as school teacher. Chelsea hoped that he would return, and when told of the report that Priestley would stay in Ireland, Mr. Palmer, Chelsea's assistant secretary, said: "We have heard nothing about it."

The Chelsea F.C. annual report has been issued. Gross income from all sources last season was £32,857. Gate receipts amounted to £20,818, an increase over the previous season of £2,495. The result of the season's working shows a credit balance of £517.

PEREIRA & PEARCE

SHOW IMPROVED FORM

LOCAL WEEK-END CRICKET

Frank Pereira and Alec Pearce have come into their own in Shanghai since the Interport, and in the course of two one-day matches have displayed splendid form.

Pereira, playing against a Shanghai Cricket Club team, captured 4 for 28, and later, against a combined Shanghai Recreation Club and Services eleven secured 6 for 31.

Hongkong won both matches comfortably, the former by eight wickets and the latter by nine wickets.

T. A. Pearce helped himself to a fine century against the Cricket Club and another 60 at the expense of the Combined attack. In the second match, Lieut. Williams (44), Harry Owen-Hughes (38 not out) and T. E. Pearce (31) figured prominently, the Colony scoring 190 for the loss of four wickets.

BRIGHT LOCAL CRICKET.

Some bright cricket was seen locally on Saturday. Civil Service and Hongkong Cricket Club scored freely on an easy wicket, and played a drawn match.

Teddy Fincher followed up his holiday innings of 97 against the Club, with another splendidly compiled 44 at the expense of the University. Professor L. T. Ride made a welcome return to local cricket in this match, and in addition to taking 3 for 14, hit up 39.

B. Lay, bowling medium paced over the wicket, routed the University second string when they were entertained by the K.C.C. He bowled five overs and captured 4 wickets for no runs. F. A. Broadbridge, a very promising bat, made his best innings of the season, hitting up 35 in good style, the K.C.C. winning easily.

At Sookunpo, the Indian Recreation Club were no match for the Army on the matting wicket, and were beaten by 76 runs. Capt. Welch delighted with some free hitting, and benefitting from the short boundary on the pavilion side of the ground, scored 58 out of a 83 before retiring.

F. R. Zimmerman has thrown in his lot with Craighenower, and on Saturday turned out for them against the Recreation. The Recreation won after dismissing their opponents for 104. A. M. Rodrigues, former University star batsman, hit up a nice looking 40 for the winners.

BRITISH GOLF SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

THIS YEAR'S RECORDS SHOW BETTER AVERAGES

R. WHITCOMBE LEADS THE FIELD WITH CONSISTENT DISPLAYS

Very few professionals were engaged in all 24 major rounds in the season's championships and outstanding tournaments, they were either absent from, or failed to qualify for the first rounds of, one or more of such events as the Open Championship, Dunlop-Southport tournament, and the Irish Open Championship.

The events taken into consideration are the big stroke competition: Open Championship, Irish Open Championship, Dunlop-Southport Tournament, and the 36 holes qualifying rounds connected with the Rochester and Leeds tournaments. Five first class professionals, however, completed the whole 24 rounds, and came out of the season's events with very creditable averages. None of them did better than four, Reginald Whitcombe heading the list with 72.95.

This, however, is excellent, considering the scratch scores over which the various events have been played. According to the English Golf Union's figures, plus an allowance of 75 (probably on the low side) for the scratch score of Portmarnock, where the Irish Open Championship was played, the scratch score average is 75.87, and all five men mentioned were well inside that score with their averages.

Four professionals of repute completed twenty rounds, having been absent from the Penfold Fairhaven tournament, and their averages for twenty rounds are under 75, while one or two others who completed sixteen or eighteen rounds all show averages well inside that of the scratch score, suggesting that British professional golf is in a strong position. Mark Seymour achieved a noteworthy performance with an average of 74.93 strokes for 22 rounds.

A FINE RECORD.

S. F. Brown, the Britisher who came to England from South Africa for this season's events, did not play at Rochester or in the Penfold tournament, but for eighteen other rounds he had an average of 73, only .05 behind Reggie Whitcombe, who, by reason of his figures for 24 rounds, must be given pride of place in the averages.

It is a pity that Alfred Padgham did not play in the tournament at Fairhaven, because his average for 20 other rounds is the very low one of 72.05, and there is no doubt that he would have challenged Reggie Whitcombe for the best record over 24 rounds.

Those two were certainly the outstanding Britishers of the year, for each was successful in two important tournaments, curiously enough one stroke and one match play event. Whitcombe won at Rochester and Fairhaven, the latter after a tie, while Padgham took the honours at Leeds and Southport.

Syd Easterbrook, who won the Irish Championship, has a very good average for 20 rounds (he missed Fairhaven), while Henry Cotton, the British Open Champion, played in only fourteen of the rounds, missing Leeds, Fairhaven, and Ireland. His average for the fourteen played is 70.6, remarkable figures, due to his brilliant scoring in the "Six round events." Open Championship and Southport, which included two qualifying rounds as well as the 72 holes, competition proper.

NORTH AND EAST MIDLANDS LEASE

Both North and East Midlands suffered defeat in the County Rugby Championship to-day, North losing to Leicestershire and East to Warwickshire. The following were the results of the principal matches played: County Championship, Leicestershire 10 North Midlands 6 (at Leicester), Warwickshire 10 East Midlands 8 (at Coventry).

Oxford's Rowing Start

CREW PRACTICE AT HENLEY

London, Sept. 19.

Although next year's University Boat Race has not yet been fixed, the Oxford University authorities have already commenced work with a view to checking the run of Cambridge successes. Mr. P. Haig-Thomas, the old Cambridge Blue, who has had a hand in the training of all the winning Cambridge crews since 1924, is taking charge of the coaching of the Oxonians for next year's race, and he is following up the work which he commenced after the Summer Eights this year by getting an Oxford crew together at once.

Term does not commence at Oxford until October 12, but Mr. Haig-Thomas has created precedent by having an eight in training at Henley. Twelve members from the University took up residence at the Leander Club at Henley on Monday, and they are having two outings daily, morning and evening. The afternoon devoted to work in the tub, and a fixed tub has been installed at the bottom of the garden of Thames field, the residence of Sir John Edward Moss. So far three Old Blues, Mr. H. Mosley, the President, A. V. Sutcliffe, and P. R. S. Bankes, have appeared in the crews, but another Blue, P. Hogg, is expected during the next day or so.

According to present arrangements the crew will remain at Henley for a fortnight, and Mr. Haig-Thomas is concentrating upon getting the men to work together.

The crew are using this year's Oxford boat, in which the Leander Club set up the new record for the Grand Challenge Cup at Henley Regatta. The order of rowing last evening was: M. H. Mosley (Trinity), bow, A. S. Ogilvie (University), B. J. Scoring (University), A. V. Sutcliffe (Trinity), P. R. S. Bankes (Christ Church), J. D. Sturrock (Magdalen), E. D. Tomlin (University), D. M. de Winter (Corpus Christi) stroke, W. G. C. Sheehy C. G. Costley White (Balliol) and G. H. D. Green (Magdalen).

MORE ENGLISH FOOTBALL LEAGUE SHOCKS

Arsenal Rout Manchester City Three-Nil

READING'S BRILLIANT VICTORY AT EXETER

Arsenal gave a typical performance before their own supporters at Highbury on Saturday, when they routed the all-conquering Manchester City by three clear goals to assume the leadership of the first division in the English Football League for the first time this season.

The day was again full of surprises. Spurs' victory at Sunderland, Stokes' successful visit to Fratton Park, Reading's great win at Exeter and the defeat of Glasgow Rangers in the Glasgow Cup final are indicative of the many upsets in form.

London had a great day. Their "Big Three" won, so did West Ham, Charlton and Crystal Palace. Fulham drew away and Clapton and Millwall shared the spoils at New Cross.

HOCKEY

SIGNALS DEFEAT ST. ANDREW'S

IN FIRST GAME

The first game in the Mamak Hockey Tournament this season was played yesterday when the Royal Corps of Signals defeated the St. Andrew's Club by two goals to one on the Police Training School ground.

There was no score in the first half. After the resumption, however, the Signals scored through May and Fielding and led by two goals to nil up to within ten minutes of the end, when E. C. Fletcher scored for the Saints.

The Saints played hard to obtain the equaliser, but failed. The latter had most of the play, but their forwards did not make the most of their opportunities, whereas the Signals indulged in some good through passing movements.

Mr. At right back, played a hard game, the Signals and Austin also played well.

For the Saints, E.H.P. White and F. A. Broadbridge were good at back.

FRIENDLY MATCH.

On the same ground yesterday morning, the Police beat the Club de Recolet in a friendly match by five goals to one.

YACHT CLUB RACES

H. S. Rouse Sails True Blue To Victory

A good race was sailed by Mr. H. S. Rouse in True Blue on Saturday when he won the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club's special "A" Class event. Artemis was second being 3 mins. 7 secs. behind the winner at the conclusion of the 10.5 mile course.

Dianna narrowly won the Mixed Classes Menagerie Race over the same course.

Wilfrid Lawrence Does The Trick Again

CREATES FOURTH SWIMMING RECORD IN V.R.C. CHAMPIONSHIPS

W. Lawrence clipped two full seconds off J. R. Johnstone's 1929 record for the 880 yards free style at the V.R.C. on Saturday evening at the Colony Championship meet.

Lawrence has this year won all four championships, from the 100 yards to the half-mile, and in each race has broken the records.

Never seriously challenged in Saturday's race, Lawrence covered the distance in 11 mins. 55 2/5 secs. W. T. Campbell, the South Wales Borderers and Army champion, succeeded in securing second place from Lionel Roza-Pereira, the titleholder, by one second. This is the first time Campbell has beaten Roza-Pereira, who has held the title for four years in succession, over this distance.

There was a large and distinguished gathering at the gala, those present including H.E. the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Barrett, and Mrs. Barrett, and the Hon. Sir Thomas Southorn, President of the V.R.C.

The Results.

880 Yards free style (Championship).—1, W. Lawrence. Time: 11 mins. 55 2/5 secs. (record); 2, W. T. Campbell; 3, David Hunt—L. Roza-Pereira and A. A. Roza.

100 Yards breast-stroke (Championship).—1, Kwok Chun-hang. Time: 22 secs. (Record); 2, E. M. Marques; 3, Fullagher.

1933 Champion—Lam Yiu. Time: 78 3/5 secs; old record—Kwok Chun-hang, (1932) Time: 77 secs.

50 Yards free style (Championship).—1, T. Paget. Time: 25 4/5 secs. (Record); 2, L. Oliveira; 3, H. L. O'Leary.

1933 Champion—E. B. Roza. Time: 25 1/5 secs.

Dividing Championship.—Edward da Roza (no challengers) 8 years in succession (Record).

50 Yards Hurdles, Handicap, Members.—1, C. F. Roza. Time: 34 3/5 secs; 2, J. J. Abner.

100 Yards Handicap, Boys.—1, J. Souza; 2, L. Remedios.

Water Polo.—Roza-Pereira's team: M. M. de V. Soares, Geo. Lynn, A. McGrath, E. Fullagher, W. Lawrence, J. A. Guterres and C. E. Roza-Pereira; W. T. Campbell's team: R. Silva-Netto, S. Delgado, L. Roza-Pereira, A. A. da Silva, W. T. Campbell, Roza and T. Paget.

THE SIGN OF SERVICE

WHEN YOU NEED YOUR WINTER CLOTHES, IF YOU DID NOT USE OUR MOTH-PROOF BAGS.

One morning you will say "Brhh! a bit chilly—think I'll wear my Tweed Suit!" But it is really in fit condition for wear? It would be wise to have a look at it now, and if it is creased or soiled—let us call for it and smarten it up. Then you will have it back all ready for the first chilly day that comes along. Even if it is a bit shabby we can make it look good again. Our cleaning processes are very thorough and include the removal of all spots and stains wherever possible. Every garment treated is carefully pressed and reshaped.

WE THINK THIS IS A GOOD IDEA. WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?

It is our intention to inaugurate a request week. Hundreds of people have asked us to repeat some of the big feature screen successes of the past.

If there is some picture you would like to see again, write and tell us about it, we will make every effort to get it.

The seven pictures receiving the greatest number of requests will each be shown for one day during a designated week.

We are instituting this request week because we think the good picture, like a good story, is worth repeating.

Misplaced Suspicion

NOTHING TO DO WITH MURDER

Annemasse, Oct. 14. The man arrested at Chamonix yesterday, thought to be a British subject, born of a Bulgarian father and Turkish mother, and suspected of complicity in the Marseilles assassinations, is now found to be an innocent Bulgarian subject.

Police state they have decided that he had nothing to do with the murder of King Alexander and M. Barthou. He will probably be released at once.—Reuter.

SIR A. SCHUSTER PASSES

DEATH OF A NOTED PROFESSOR

London, Oct. 14. The death is announced of Professor Sir Arthur Schuster, at the age of 83 years.

Educated on the Continent and at Owens College, Manchester, he was Professor of Physics at Manchester University from 1888 to 1907. Amongst the many positions he held were those of President of the Physical Society, London, and of the British Association, as well as Secretary of the Royal Society. He was Secretary of the International Research Council from 1919 to 1928 and member of the Cambridge University Commission in 1923 and 1924. He was chief of the Eclipse Expedition to Siam in 1876.—Reuter.

The seizure of 70,000 heroin pills formed the subject of an application for a writ of Habeas Corpus made by Detective Sergeant D. Fitch before Mr. Hamilton in the Central Magistrate's Court this morning. The pills were contained in three tin boxes and were discovered on the vacant first floor of No. 7 Lee Garden Street, on October 5 at 8 p.m. The application was granted.

FURTHER RACES IN JAPAN

Miss Stella Walsh, the famous Polish-American woman athlete, whose real name is Mile. Walasiewicz, broke her own world's record for the 200 metres track at Osaka yesterday according to Reuter, when she returned the amazing time of 23 8/10 seconds.

Her previous record figures were 24 1/10 seconds, established at Chicago in 1932.

Miss Walsh recently passed through Hongkong on her way to Japan when she announced her intention of attacking her own world's record mark. She travelled out to the Far East from

TROOPS BATTER REDS' DEFENCES

Government Forces Thrust In Kiangsi

Nanchang, Oct. 15. The North Route Army of the Anti-Red Expeditionary Forces has renewed a vigorous attack on the Red positions in Kiangsi. Since last Thursday Government troops have been on the offensive.

The Government troops are making considerable advance towards Hsingkuo, one of the Red strongholds in Kiangsi.

The Nanchang Military Headquarters issued a communique today stating that the Government vanguard had reached the suburb of Hsingkuo. Fighting is in progress in this direction.—Central News.

England independently, after participating in the Women's World Olympics in London.

HOLDS THREE RECORDS.

She is one of the outstanding women athletes of the age. Although still at school, and right now "playing truant," she has lowered no less than three world marks on the track.

Her present world records are:

80 metres 9 9/10 secs. Cleveland, 1931;

100 metres 11 9/10 secs. Los Angeles, 1932; (shared with Miss Shuurman)

200 metres 23 8/10 secs. Osaka, 1934.

Her latest achievement is not yet, of course, officially recognised, but it is certain to be put before the authorities for this purpose.

Miss Walsh will be attacking her other records before leaving Japan, in the course of which she will compete against Japan's leading women athletes, who recently took part in the World Olympics.
